First Arlington target of suits

Bank official probed for misuse of funds

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A First Arlington National Bank official is under federal investigation for misapplication of bank funds, The Herald has learned.

A federal grand jury recently subpoenaed bank records, and Richard Held, special agent in charge of the Chicago FBI office, confirmed Tuesday that "an investigation is being conducted."

Held refused to comment specifically about the FBI probe.

BUT A SEPARATE, month-long investigation by The Herald has found that the FBI probe is concentrating on the financial dealings of the bank official who reportedly has approved hundreds of thousands of dollars in commercial loans to firms closely connected with the official.

The FBI also is investigating charges that the official appropriated, without payment, nearly $35,000 in cashier's checks several years ago. The banker subsequently paid for the checks.

The Herald also has learned that:

- A series of lawsuits, seeking millions of dollars in damages, charge bank officials with mismanagement of funds.
- Billy C. Woods, the Chicago-based regional administrator of national banks, has ordered the bank to reform loan policies.

The separate lawsuits, by a former Palatine boat store owner, by Mazda Motors of America Inc. and by the former owners of the Tollway-Arlington National Bank building, Arlington Heights, are filed in state and federal courts in Illinois and Texas.

First Arlington National Bank officials agreed to an out-of-court settlement in January with the former Tollway-Arlington bank building owners. The settlement included personal payment to the building owners of a total of $95,000 by five bank officials.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Herald recognizes the extraordinary nature of the accompanying article. It follows a detailed investigation by Al Messerschmidt, The Herald's chief investigative reporter. That investigation involved detailed interviews with numerous officials and sources, many of whom would speak only "off the record." The roles of various officials of the First Arlington National Bank in recent events should become clearer as The Herald's investigation continues. We particularly note the comment of a source we believe to be credible that the over-all condition of the bank is good and is improving.)

The suit charged that First Arlington National Bank officials blocked construction of the building, at Algonquin and Arlington Heights roads, by refusing to renew loans to builders Ralph L. Edgar and Denis J. Rintz, by failing to credit a $170,000 mortgage payment by the owners and by foreclosing a mortgage on the property.

THE SUIT also states that bank vice president Bruce H. Dodds purchased the building, which was mortgaged for more than $1.5 million, for $5,000 at a bank foreclosure "sale." Dodds placed the property in trust at Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, Wheeling, and remortgaged the building for $1.6 million, the suit states.

Rintz and Edgar agreed, in the out-of-court settlement, to surrender rights to approximately 100 acres of land in McHenry County as well as rights to the Tollway-Arlington Bank building property.

"We wouldn't have made a voluntary settlement unless it was to the bank's advantage," a First Arlington National Bank official, who asked not to be named, told The Herald.

First Arlington National Bank is named as a counterdefendant in the Mazda Motors case. Mazda Motors is seeking more than $660,000 in damages for nonpayment after delivery of 61 Mazda cars to Golden Era Classics & Imports Ltd.

Golden Era Classics, formerly of 900 E. Rand Rd., Des Plaines, is seeking $2 million in damages from First Arlington National Bank and has charged that the bank misapplied loan funds created for payments of the Mazdas.

Bank officials denied the charges, in an answer to the complaint.

THE OWNER of Barney's Boats and three corporations are seeking more than $1.2 million in damages from First Arlington bank officials charging theft of property from the boat store at 1140 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

The boat firm filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy last year. The complaint charges that two bank officials entered the boat store, which was closed for the winter, in late February and removed property from the store. The property was protected by a bankruptcy court order, the complaint states.

An attorney for the bank reportedly told a Texas bankruptcy judge last month that the boats were removed because the boat store roof was leaking, The Herald has learned.

"We really didn't take the property," a bank official told The Herald. "We simply removed it to a location where it would be safer." The official

DANIEL BALDINO of Evanston urges fellow Regional Transportation Authority board members to demand Chairman Milton Pikarsky's resignation. Three suburban members joined Baldino in threatening to seek dissolution of the RTA and block passage of its budget unless Pikarsky, a Chicagoan, quits. In a heated exchange at the RTA board meeting, Pikarsky vowed to stay as chairman.

4 RTA members demand Pikarsky's resignation

by LYNN ASINOF

The city-suburban split on the Regional Transportation Authority board was widened Wednesday when four suburban board members threatened to seek dissolution of the agency and block passage of its budget unless Chairman Milton Pikarsky resigns.

Pikarsky said he has no intention of resigning from his $72,500-a-year post, despite threats by suburban board members that they would not vote to approve a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Under state law, six of the nine board members must vote to approve the budget, which will be needed by July 1 if the RTA is to continue providing funds for transportation systems in the six-county RTA area. The budget is the only matter in which six votes are required for passage.

"I CANNOT FORESEE any circumstances under which I would resign as chairman and chief executive officer of the Regional Transportation Authority," Pikarsky said Wednesday. His contract runs through 1979.

Pikarsky charged the four suburban board members were politically motivated in calling for his resignation and predicted they would modify their position under the pressure of public opinion.

Daniel Baldino of Evanston said he drafted the statement calling for Pikarsky's resignation. It was endorsed by Richard Newland of Waukegan, Eugene Leonard of Midlothian and Jerry Boose of South Elgin.

The suburban board members said Pikarsky is responsible for the "serious problems that exist at the RTA." They also presented a list of more than 20 complaints and grievances that included Pikarsky's failure to provide needed information and leadership. They said he has "a record of broken promises and commitments too lengthy to mention."

"HE IS UNABLE to lead. He is incapable of working with the board. He is bringing about the destruction of the RTA," Baldino said.

Pikarsky said to the best of his knowledge he has never broken a promise to any board member.

The four suburban board members said that while Pikarsky's resignation

Lake Arlington in watershed plan

The $10.4 million Lake Arlington flood-control project proposed by the Village of Arlington Heights will not be "locked out" of the Des Plaines River Watershed Plan, to be released in June, village officials said Wednesday.

A representative of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's soil conservation division has told Village Engineer Allen Sander that the project will be mentioned in the upcoming report to allow the possibility for it to be given reconsideration.

Sander met with U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and Soil Conservation Service representatives Tutsday at the proposed site for the lake north of Palatine Road and east of Windsor Drive. The meeting was arranged by Sander and Village Pres. James T. Ryan at a meeting in Washington D.C. March 29.

SANDER SAID the Lake Arlington project will be mentioned in the watershed plan "as a project by others," which will not guarantee federal funding for it.

The Des Plaines watershed plan is considered a blueprint for state and federally funded flood-control work in the area.

"Our fear has been that the report would be printed in June without any mention of Lake Arlington," Sander said.

"What we want now is to have it include a statement saying it appears additional information should be considered and the project should be given further scrutiny on the basis of that information," he said.

"WHAT WE'RE DOING is buying time until the implementation plan is written. We just want them to leave the door open to us to submit additional data. Hopefully, we will be able to get them to recognize that maybe everything was not taken into consideration."

Ryan called the decision to mention the Lake Arlington project in the initial watershed plan "modest encouragement."

"It does give us another opportunity to justify what we've been saying about Lake Arlington being a viable project," Ryan said.

THE SOIL CONSERVATION Service has not endorsed the Lake Arlington plan, saying it is too expensive.

Instead of the lake, the Soil Conservation Service and the Army Corps of Engineers have proposed digging a diversionary overflow ditch along a southern branch of McDonald Creek to solve flooding problems in the area.

Village engineers say the overflow ditch will not resolve upstream flooding problems, which is what the village hopes to substantiate in future studies, Sander said.

The proposed site for the 60-acre lake is on 113 acres north of Palatine Road and east of Windsor Drive. Extensive recreational uses also are planned for the site.

China's Teng loses jobs, replaced by Mao protege

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, acting on a direct proposal by Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, purged Party Vice Chairman Teng Hsiao-ping Wednesday from all posts in the party, government and army in the climax to a titanic struggle for power.

The upheaval was announced by Peking Radio and New China News Agency which said Teng was removed as a direct result of the violent and gigantic pro-Teng demonstrations Monday in Peking's Tien An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square. Peking likened Teng to Imre Nagy, the Hungarian leader who tried to take Hungary out of the Warsaw Pact during the 1956 Hungarian revolution.

Teng, as acting premier and Chou En-Lai's chosen successor, played host to President Ford on Ford's visit to Peking last December. He wielded enormous power under Chou but came under attack after he delivered Chou's funeral oraton and has not been seen publicly since.

He was replaced as party vice chairman by a Mao protege, Hua Kuo-Feng, the nation's top police officer, who was named premier Wednesday. Hua received former President Richard M. Nixon last February when Hua was acting premier.

Although stripped of all posts, including acting chief of the general staff of the Chinese armed forces, Teng was allowed to "keep his party membership so as to see how he will behave himself in the future," the announcement by Peking Radio and the

Meet La Belle Fatima

Today

by ELEANOR RIVES

There she stands. The Strangest Girl Alive, her neck and wrists encircled with live jewelry. She's the World's Most Fearless Snake Charmer and her bracelets and necklaces are snakes — live, writhing snakes.

Right this way, ladies and gentlemen, for the most exotic, the most exciting dancers you have ever seen. Don't miss La Belle Fatima, Queen of the Kootch Dancers.

Step right up for the thrill of your life. See the most courageous riders in the world perform their death-defying tricks. Thrill to the Mile-A-Minute Girl as she clings by one foot to the motorcycle driven by her partner on the perpendicular walls of the motordrome.

KATHRYN SNELLENBERGER, who lives with her daughter in Des Plaines, celebrated her 80th birthday last month. The memories crowding the house were as indelible as the blue tattoos on her arms.

Kay's introduction to show business took place decades ago when she was only 16 and joined the chorus line at a Cleveland theater, but found out it wasn't all that glamorous. It was certainly no way to see the world.

She and an older woman who played the concertina decided to run away and join the circus. They settled for a carnival.

"It turned out the woman was a fortune teller,

A SCHAUMBURG WOMAN was injured Wednesday when her auto swerved out of control on Golf road near Oakwood Dr. in Mount Prospect, flipped over and landed rightside up in a ditch. Harriet Kling, 30, of 162 Algonquin Rd., was in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital with a neck injury.

Police arrest 16 in drug crackdown

Sixteen persons were arrested and four more are sought by Palatine police in a crackdown on drug traffic in the village. Twelve adults and four juveniles face drug, theft and burglary charges. Police confiscated heroin, marijuana and illicit drugs with a combined street value of between $7,000 and $8,000 ending the first three weeks of an ongoing investigation. A suspected heroin dealer and three suspected marijuana possessors are being sought by police. "The heat is on," a police spokesman said. "It's getting pretty tight in town for drugs." Area residents arrested in the crackdown include: Mark A. Meldahl, 21; Jacqueline King, 22; Alan Egebrecht, 18; William E. Palmer, 19; and Donald Harner, 22; Alan of Palatine. Also arrested: Anthony F. Bucaro, 19, Rolling Meadows; Kevin J. Maher, 26, Arlington Heights; Raymond E. Mroczkowski, 20, Palatine Township.

Park View school to close

Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, will be closed next fall by the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education. The board voted 6-1 early Wednesday to close the school before nearly 200 residents attending a public hearing on the school closing. The board voted last month to close one of the district's five elementary schools to offset declining enrollment and decreased revenues in the district. School officials said Dist. 26 faces bankruptcy by the 1977-78 school year if spending is not reduced and if local taxes and school aid is not increased. The decision to close Park View was based on evaluations of the district's schools, which gave Park View the lowest rating.

Call toll-free Saturdays for tax data

The Illinois Dept. of Revenue will provide a special toll-free telephone service Saturday and April 17 to answer questions about the state income tax.

The number for Cook County is 641-2150. Residents outside of the county should call 800-252-8972 for information Calls on those days may be made from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Those numbers are in operation during weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Taxpayers also can obtain information from the state revenue offices at 160 N. LaSalle St., 3210 N. Nordica Ave., 9415 Western Ave., all in Chicago, and 7101 N. Cicero Ave., Lincolnwood.

The deadline for filing both state and federal income, tax returns is April 15.

Correction

A story in Tuesday's Herald incorrectly reported Alfreda Grudnicki, Maine Township, who was shot to death in an apparent murder-suicide Monday as being employed with Composite Plastics, 2620 Clybourn, Chicago.

The mistake resulted from inaccurate information supplied by Cook County Sheriff's police.

Authorities later corrected their information to read the woman was employed at Plastic Capacitors, 2620 Clybourn, Chicago.

JADE PLANT

DRACAENA MARGINATA

The Bank of Elk Grove wants your spring to be a little greener! We'll give you your choice of one of six beautiful foliage plants valued at more than $10 each just for qualifying for our Cash Reserve plan or for making a $300 savings deposit. Here are the details:

1. Qualify for Cash Reserve. This is an automatic line of credit on a regular checking account. It lets you write yourself a loan — up to an established limit — simply by drawing a check.

If you are a checking customer now, come in or call for a Cash Reserve application. Or, open a new checking account with $100 or more and apply for Cash Reserve at the same time.

Either way, you'll be notified within a few days whether you're eligible for Cash Reserve. When you are, you can pick up your plant at the bank. (You must apply for Cash Reserve no later than April 24 to be eligible for this plant offer.)

And, later in the year, you'll receive another benefit for being a Cash Reserve customer — a special card that will let you transact banking business and get cash anytime, seven days a week, through "MAC", the Bank of Elk Grove's 24-hour teller to be installed this summer.

2. Save $300. Deposit $300 in a new or existing savings account, and select the plant you want. At the Bank of Elk Grove you'll find all our savings plans earn the highest bank interest rates allowed by law.

Plants may be picked up at the bank during regular lobby hours — this offer good only as long as our supply lasts. Limit one gift per family please.

Qualifying deposits must be funds new to the Bank of Elk Grove and remain on deposit for not less than 6 months, or cost of premium will be deducted.

New China News Agency said.

Although Mao apparently won a great political victory Wednesday, Western observers said this does not mean the power struggle is over. Some very basic issues are involved, and many other high level leaders have been closely associated with Teng' policies.

This was Teng's second purge. It came almost three years to the day when he was restored to power after being ousted during the Cultural Revolution.

The charges against him in both cases were essentially the same — that he ignored Mao's policy line.

"Having discussed the counter-revolutionary incident which took place at Tien An Men Square and Teng Hsiao-Ping's latest behaviors, the Politburo of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China holds that the nature of the Teng Hsiao-ping problem has turned into one of antagonistic contradiction," the resolution said.

It said the attack was "personally initiated and led" by Mao.

The swiftness of the action was regarded by China analysts as an indication of the serious concern among Mao and the other leaders over Monday's riots. During those riots, mobs set fire to at least three vehicles and a building in the square while protesting against the removal of wreaths paying tribute to Chou.

Peking reports said troops of the Chinese People's Liberation Army cordoned off Tien An Men Square and were guarding the Forbidden City where Mao and other leaders live, There also were reports of large-scale movement of militia and public security bureau personnel.

A separate report broadcast by Peking Radio and transmitted by New China reviewed the events of last Monday in Tien An Men.

This report in the official newspaper People's Daily said the disturbances were "premeditated and planned counter-revolutionary" incidents "openly hoisting the ensign of supporting Teng Hsiao-ping."

It said more than 100,000 persons gathered in the square and that "bad elements" supporting Teng burned four cars and other vehicles, wrecked a fire engine, assaulted policemen and soldiers and looted and set fire to a building used by the public security bureau.

TENG HSIAO-PING

Billionaire Hughes buried; wealth remains a mystery

HOUSTON (UPI) — Billionaire Howard R. Hughes was given a simple Episcopal graveside service and buried Wednesday alongside his parents in a tree-shaded, century old cemetery in his Texas birthplace.

Only 16 mourners attended the private eight-minute rite in keeping with the solitary lifestyle of Hughes. His death proved he had lived as a recluse in hideaways around the world for the past two decades.

But mystery still surrounded his wealth, estimated at $2 billion, and how it will be disposed. It was believed he wrote a will for disposition of the bulk of his holdings to charitable and religious groups.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Summa Corp. said disposition of his holdings has not been determined. Hughes was the only stockholder in Summa, parent firm for his holdings.

"It is not an impossible assumption that these profits (holdings) will go" to the Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami, he said. "But, speculation that substantial portions will go to the Mormon Church, I think, is grossly exaggerated."

Splashes of sunlight filtered through haze on the morning dew as the Episcopal priest in flowing white robe moved before the simple metal casket on a knoll in Glenwood Cemetery. With his hand raised in supplication over the remains the Very Rev. Robert Gibson's voice broke the spring stillness.

"We brought nothing into this world. It is certain we can take nothing out," the dean of Christ Church Cathedral read from the prayer book. "In my father's house there are many mansions. Remember thy servant Howard, O Lord, give him eternal rest and peace in Thy heavenly kingdom."

Gibson then sprinkled dirt over the silver-colored copper casket and ended the rite with a prayer.

Mrs. Frederick R. Lummit, Hughes' aged aunt and closet living relative, sat emotionless in front of the closed casket. Two sprays of flowers, white roses and yellow carnations were displayed at the open-sided green pavilion.

Mrs. Lummis helped raise Hughes after his mother died from an overdose of anesthetic while undergoing minor surgery. Hughes' father died when he was 19 and he parlayed the family oil tool drilling company into his legenday financial empire that included planes, gambling casinos, movies and screen stars.

Hughes, 70, died Monday of kidney failure on an emergency flight on a private hospital jet from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston. An autopsy performed Tuesday showed he died of "chronic renal disease."

In Washington, meantime, the FBI said it has identified fingerprints taken from a body by a medical examiner in Houston as being identical with those of billionaire Howard Hughes.

The FBI said it made the fingerprint comparison at the request of Treasury Secretary William E. Simon. Simon had asked Internal Revenue Service agents in Houston to forward a set of the prints for "the obvious tax implications."

Sharpshooters, ambulances stand ready

Officials take tough skyjack stand

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — Three armed Moslem rebels who hijacked a domestic Philippine Airlines jet backed down at dawn Thursday from their second deadline in which they threatened to kill hostages and allowed a doctor aboard to check the health of the 70 passengers.

But they also retracted a short-lived offer to release a woman and her six-month old child and military spokesman Lt. Col. Pablo Gonzales said, "There will be no ransom and no departure."

Pilot Arnulfo Santos radioed that all 70 passengers, including one American whom he only identified as F. Schroeder, 12 women and nine children were safe. So was apparently the six-member crew.

Santos suggested that a hot breakfast and toiletries be sent aboard.

Almost 24 hours after the hijack drama started in the southern Philippine town of Cagayan De Oro, the twin-engine BAC-111 jet stood immobile on a taxiway at Manila Airport.

A company of sharpshooters, nine ambulances, seven firetrucks and a flatbed truck stacked with sandbags stood at the ready but remained out of sight of the hijacked plane.

The hijackers, described by military authorities as the "toughest yet" in recent Philippine hijack history, took over the plane early Wednesday at the Cagayan De Oro provincial airport 490 miles south of Manila and ordered it flown to the capital.

The hijackers demanded $300,000, a pilot with international rating to fly them "westwards," and the release of five prisoners held in Manila jails. They were believed to be armed with two grenades and two pistols. They requested a flight plan for Singapore.

Military negotiators, who have told the hijackers they have no authority to meet their demands and that no nearby Asian airport has given clearance for the plane to land, quietly brought four of the five prisoners requested to the airport without telling the hijackers they were there.

Military officials allowed one of the prisoners, reserve Lt. Col. Rafael Yabut, onto the tarmac to talk to the hijackers in person.

Yabut talked for about 30 minutes with the three hijackers through an open forward front door, told them he did not want to leave the country with them and urged them to release other passengers.

Gonzales said Yabut had established that the three were armed with at least two pistols — one a .38 and the other a .45 — and two hand grenades.

Gonzales repeated the government hard line laid down by President Ferdinand Marcos the night before saying, "There will be no ransom and no departure."

Ford, Carter step closer to nomination

by United Press International

Jimmy Carter and President Ford, big winners thus far in the 1976 primary season, moved closer to the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations Wednesday with victories in Wisconsin. Sen. Henry Jackson stayed afloat in the Democratic race with a delegate-rich win in New York.

Ford beat Ronald Reagan handily in Wisconsin and added 45 delegates to his total. Carter, trailing Rep. Morris Udall in Tuesday night's count, overtook Udall early Wednesday in the four-man contest. The former Georgia governor got 26 delegates and the Arizona congressman 25 in Wisconsin.

In New York, Jackson got more than 100 delegates, but fell short of capturing a majority of the state's 274 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, where 1,505 delegates mean nomination. Carter leads Democrats with 237 delegates pledged to him to date. Jackson has 166 and Udall 119.

There was no real Republican delegate contest, with 151 "uncommitted" but controlled by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and favorable to Ford. Reagan won three delegates in the Queens section of New York City. With 1,130 needed for the GOP nominaton, Ford had 251 pledged and Reagan 84.

Wisconsin left Udall, the last major active survivor of a crowd of liberal Democrats who began the primary marathon six weeks ago in New Hampshire, with faint hope of getting his nomination campaign on the tracks.

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris called a news conference for Thursday and was expected to announce withdrawal as an active Democratic candidate.

Udall had worked two years in Wisconsin, his strongest effort. Carter spent five days in the state. Udall led by up to 16,000 votes in Tuesday night's count. Victory came close. The Arizonan stood before a cheering crowd proclaiming, "How sweet it is."

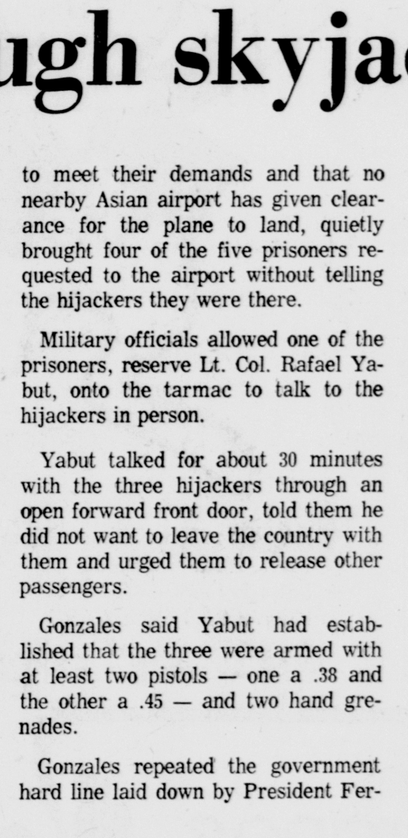
But the tide turned. Carter, swamped in liberal Madison, home of the University of Wisconsin, fought Udall to a standstill in Milwaukee and beat him in small towns and farm areas. Udall, disconsolate, said later the idea was to stop "the Carter bandwagon."

Gov. George Wallace, who had hoped to recreate his strong 1964 and 1972 showings in Wisconsin — he was second in 1972 — was a distant third, with 10 delegates. Jackson was in fourth place, with six.

Udall finished a strong second in New York with 70 delegates.Carter had 35 delegates and there were 34 favoring Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

With all of Wisconsin's 3,390 precincts reporting, Carter finished with 270,000 votes or 37 per cent; Udall 36,070 or 36 per cent; Wallace 92,393 or 13 per cent, and Jackson 47,459 or 7 per cent.

Wisconsin and New York were the last primaries until Pennsylvania on April 27.



FORMER GEORGIA Gov. Jimmy Carter holds up edition of Milwaukee Sentinel which declared Rep. Morris Udall the winner of the Wisconsin primary. In late returns, however, Carter caught and defeated Udall.

Amendments attached to Ford flu bill

President Ford's $135 million mass flu vaccination plan, which has sailed smoothly through Congress so far, encountered a potential setback Wednesday. A Senate appropriations subcommittee approved the measure but added four amendments providing funds for public service jobs, jobs for the elderly and summer youth jobs and recreation programs. A subcommittee aide, however, insisted the separate attachment would not deter the flu bill.

Board views Karen Quinlan death case

Whether comatose Karen Ann Quinlan has a right to "die with dignity" was up to the St. Clare's Hospital Board of Trustees Wednesday. The 21-member board was considering whether to appeal a court decision allowing the 22-year-old Karen's removal from her life-sustaining respirator. A hospital spokesman said the board's decision would not be announced until at least Friday "and that date is tentative." The State Supreme Court ruled March 31 that the respirator could be disconnected, if such action had specific medical approval.

Food price inflation forecast eased

The Agriculture Department Wednesday scaled down its official forecast of food inflation for 1976 and one official predicted that grocery price gains will be the smallest in four years. Scrapping a previous forecast that retail prices would rise 1 per cent in each of the first two quarters of 1976, the department's chief economist said in a statement that prices held unchanged in the first quarter and may "increase slightly" in the April-June second quarter. Lower meat prices from unexpected gains in meat supplies during the first quarter caused most food price indicators to hold steady, explained economist Don Paarlberg.

Gloomy financial picture of N.Y. painted

New York City business leaders Wednesday painted a gloomy picture for the future of the nation's largest city — a complete turnabout from the optimistic appraisals city and state officials gave Congress last week. Executives from the New York Stock Exchange, Citibank, American Express and other major corporations situated in or around the city told New York congressmen that despite federal loans the city is not curing its economic woes and will eventually be forced to default.

CAB refuses to ban Concorde from U.S.

The Civil Aeronautics Board refused Wednesday to ban the Concorde supersonic transport from the United States, handing environmentalist their second defeat by a federal agency in the SST controversy. Ruling on a motion filed by the Environmental Defense Fund, the board said it saw no need to hold its own hearings on the Anglo-French SST or to bar the craft by revising operating permits held by British Airways and Air France.

Blockade helps truce to hold in Lebanon

Syria has imposed a blockade along Lebanon's coast to keep military supplies from reaching rebel Moslem leftists who oppose the Syrian peace efforts, political sources said Wednesday. The sources said the blockade is one of the main reasons the current 10-day truce is holding despite isolated Christian-Moslem clashes. Both Christian and Moslem sides have felt the blockade. There were bread shortages in Moslem-controlled Western Beirut and fuel shortages in the Christian-held eastern sector.

One garage at a time, trustee says

Arlington Heights Village Trustee August Bettman said Wednesday only one parking garage should be planned for the central business district.

Bettman, chairman of the blue ribbon committee created by the village board last October to study alternatives for rejuvenating the downtown area, said he will ask the committee to reconsider its recommendation that two downtown parking garages be built simultaneously.

"It's only good common business sense to get the first one off the ground before building a second one," Bettman said. "I don't think the village board nor the public will support the idea of building two garages simultaneously."

The committee last week voted to recommend that 500-car parking garages be built on each side of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, with the first one designated for village-owned land at the corner of Sigwalt Street and Vail Avenue on the south side.

THE COMMITTEE will meet April 20 to draft additional recommendations for improving the central business district.

Proposed improvements for the downtown area have been opposed by several businessmen from the north side of the railroad tracks because of the special tax district that will be needed to help pay for the projects.

Frank J. Psota, a northside dentist, suggested at the committee's meeting last week that two separate tax districts be created.

Earl Johnson, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and a member of the committee, said Bettman's request to have the committee only recommend one garage "could become an area of contention" for having two separate tax districts.

"IF ONLY A GARAGE for the south side is proposed, I think a number of northside people would expect the special tax district to also be limited to the south side," Johnson said.

"I think one garage will be a great asset to the downtown area, and two would probably be better," Johnson said.

Bettman said he is aware that some northside businessmen oppose paying for south side improvements, but questioned whether separate tax districts would be economically feasible.

"I don't know if the south side, by itself, could support a parking garage project, and I know the north could nowhere begin to," Bettman said.

Merchants must do more to lure shoppers: poll

Downtown improvement surveys returned to the village planning department by 2,200 residents show that more than parking garages and malls are needed to bring shoppers to the central business district, Arlington Heights Trustee August Bettman says.

"Even if we build a garage and spruce up the downtown, the merchants themselves have got to do a lot of things on their own," Bettman said.

A major complaint is that the downtown stores do not have uniform hours he said. Other complaints are that merchants aren't aggressive, don't advertise enough and have overpriced merchandise, Bettman said.

A survey is being prepared by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce to see how merchants feel about establishing uniform store hours.

Village Planner Joseph Kesler Wednesday asked that residents return the shopping surveys included in the last village newsletter as soon as possible so a final report can be prepared.

Preschool testing signup continues

Parents of preschool children in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 who think their preschool child may have a learning or development problem may register for free screening tests in the district.

Parents may register until Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. at their local school. The screenings will be given in May. Two types of screening tests will be offered, one for students who will be age 3 to kindergarten age by Dec. 2, 1976, and one for students with fall birthdays who will enter kindergarten in September 1976.

Dist. 25 has a preschool program for children with learning or development problems of such severity that remediation is necessary to succeed in school.

Classes in the preschool program are arranged according to age and problem, with emphasis on remediation.

The perm of tomorrow is here today.

If you're into the new, natural look in hair fashions you probably think perms are not for you. Not true! Redken has created a system of perming without free ammonia (and its harsh results!) Formulated for today's hair fashions, the Redken Trichoperm System has protein polypeptides and a low pH (close to your hair's natural pH). The combination of a low pH, no free ammonia and protein polypeptides results in a perm that comes out better, is much more natural looking.

If you want your hairstyle to last without the frizzy, me-too look of yesterday's perms, you want The Redken Trichoperm System. Available in a formula specifically suited to your type of hair. Make an appointment for the perm of tomorrow today!

..ould satisfy their grievances, they also are investigating the "drastic" alternative of organizing a referendum for the dissolution of the RTA.

"Our attorneys are presently working on it," Newland said. He said action on dissolution would have to be taken by May 1 and 300,000 signatures would be needed. "We can do that in a week's time," he said.

BOTH PIKARSKY and the suburban board members said they were confident that public opinion would come to bear in their favor.

"I have confidence in our public reaction," Pikarsky said, saying he was confident there would be a budget by June 30.

Suburban board members said they were willing to go line-by-line through the budget and only approve funds needed to keep a skeleton RTA operation. Boose said budget approval might come "item by item, pencil by pencil."

"In the 15 months since I have been chairman, it has been the suburban board members who have engaged in tactics of devisiveness and obstructionism," Pikarsky said. "They have r e j e c t e d efforts for compromise. Their actions and attitudes have not been in the public interest."

The suburban board members said their actions were not part of a city-suburban split.

"Our action today should in no way be interpreted as action against the other board members or against the "CTA," they said "Our Chicago colleagues have ability and integrity."

Boose said the suburban directors had not asked any of the city board members to join them in their call for Pikarsky's resignation.

"It would be political suicide for those people," he said.

THE CITY-SUBURBAN split has been in existence since the formation of the RTA but the matter apparently came to a head over negotiations for a purchas-of-service agreement with the Chicago & North Western Ry.

Newland said problems with the negotiations were "the straw that broke the camel's back," and Pikarsky agreed.

The suburban board members said they did not expect Pikarsky's immediate resignation, but predicted he would give in eventually.

"If he doesn't do it he's the most selfish individual I have ever seen," Newland said.

Paul Buekholz promoted to police captain

Paul A. Buckholz Jr. recently was sworn in as an Arlington Heights police captain.

Buckholz, 49, was one of four lieutenants recently tested by the Arlington Heights Fire and Police Commission. He received the highest scores, finishing ahead of Leroy J. Weith, George D. Ekblad and Phillip M. Olszewski.

His appointment by Police Chief L. W. Calderwood was approved Monday by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Other promotions announced Monday were Richard Reid to lieutenant and Dave Crittendon to sergeant.

The promotion of Buckholz fills a vacancy created last September when Capt. Jack Aldrich retired to become police chief at Barrington Hills.

B u c k h o l z joined the Arlington Heights police force in 1959 as a patrolman. He became a sergeant in 1968 and was promoted to lieutenant in 1973.

Buckholz has directed the department's juvenile division since 1971. He will leave that department later this month, though his duties as captain have not yet been outlined because the department is being reorganized.

His salary will increase from $20,289 to $21,280.

Reading choices reveal interests of village leaders

by JOE SWICKARD

In keeping with National Library Week, Frank Dempsey, executive librarian of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, decided to take a peek between some community leaders' covers — uh, book covers, that is.

Mindful of Silas Weir Mitchell's observation in "Books and the Man," we can all note, "Show me the books he loves and I shall know; The man far better than through mortal friends."

Members of the village and state government came under Dempsey's scrutiny as did segments of the business community as well as his own favorites and those of Richard Frisbie, president of the library board

PERHAPS IT IS JUST the Bicentennial that is going around, but history emerged as the favorite topic of our leaders.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-3rd, reported she read "All the Queen's Men" by Evelyn Anthony and "Kate" by Charles Higham while she was hospitalized with a broken ankle.

When not having her bones knit, Mrs. Chapman reads to gather information, she said.

Some books that were most enjoyable or impressive for her were some classic offerings such as "Little Women," and other books by Louisa May Alcott in addition to French histories, and historical novels.

Dempsey's last two books read were "The Last European War" by John Lukacs and "The Case History of Comrade V" by James Park Sloan, who will be speaking at the library April 22.

DEMPSEY'S RECREATIONAL reading tends to run to volumes of naval history and novels with contemporary themes.

All-time favorite books listed by Dempsey include, J. R. R. Tolkien's "The Lord of the Rings" the novels of Ernest Hemingway and James Joyce's "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man."

Frisbie, as fitting a library board president, appears to be omniverous when it comes to the printed word. His tory, humor, current affairs, travel, adventure, architecture and sailing are all part of the "perhaps 6,000 to 8,000 books" he has read.

His most enjoyed or impressive books run the gamut from Samuel Eliot Monson's two volume work "The European Discovery of America" to Woody Allen and the brothers Durant's "The Age of Napolean."

EARL JOHNSON, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, may have revealed some royalist leanings with his two most recent books: "Henry VIII — Mask of Royalty" and "The Tudors."

Johnson likes histories and said he was especially impressed by Bruce Catton's histories of the American Civil War.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-3rd, just finished "Clout" and "The Age of Napoleon."

Histories, the works of Shakespeare, The Bible, "Last Days of Pompeii" and "War and Peace," have been influential for Mrs. Macdonald.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Village Pres. James T. Ryan just read "Centennial" by James Michener and "1876" by Gore Vidal.

When not boning up on financial studies for football stadiums, Ryan settles back with biographies and historical novels.

As for the important works, he listed "Cry the Beloved Country" by Alan Paton, "This is My God" by Herman Wouk and John F. Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage."

Trustee Madeline Schroeder whiles away the hours with histories and works of current events leaning toward local government and corruption.

Her two most recent books were "Boss" by Mike Royko and Justin Kaplan's biography of muckraker "Lincoln Steffens."

Mrs. Schroeder also was impressed with Steffens' autobiography, "American Local Government" by George S. Blair and "The City in History" by Lewis Mumford.

As revealing as these reading lists are, bear in mind that Mitchell said of other important books: "The first thing to be done by a biographer in estimating character is to examine the stubs of the victim's chequebooks."

So far, these are yet to be shelved at the library.

A Great Concept in Shopping

little tot's shoes are like little tires*

Just as improper "wear patterns" on tires warn Dad of trouble ahead . . . improper "wear patterns" on children's shoes broadcast a danger signal!

At De Witt's we examine the "wear pattern" of your child's shoes. If the shoe is wearing improperly, we'll suggest you consult your child's physician to insure the development of a normal walking pattern.

It's another reason why . . . A STEP INTO DE WITT'S IS A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION!

*Tires and shoes can be replaced. But a tot will walk the distance to the moon (240,000 miles) in a life time, but replacing their feet is impossible.

A MINUTEMAN lays waiting for the Redcoats in Windsor School's Bicentennial pageant to be performed today and Friday at 7 p.m. at Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner, Arlington Heights. The pageant is one of the Harper College area schools' Bicentennial events.

Arlington High Thespians play opens tonight

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," a comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, will be presented Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

On a speaking tour of the country, radio star Sheridan Whiteside is invited to the Ohio home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stanley. When the play opens Whiteside has been in their home for two weeks with what everyone thinks is a broken hip. The tyrannical Whiteside proceeds to take over the operation of the household and the play consists of one mad entrance after another of film stars, penguins, mummy cases, convicts and an octopus which arrives to keep him company during his illness.

Tickets are $1.50 for students and $2 for adults and are available from cast members or by calling CL 3-0200, ext. 71.

Village board wrapup

35-acre annexation OKd for Szczesny

The annexation of 35 acres at the northeast corner of Waterman and Thomas streets and preliminary plans for the development of the land by Szczesny Builders has been approved by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The proposed project, which will be called Courts of Russetwood, calls for 105 single-family homes. Cost of the homes will be approximately $90,000, Robert Goldman, an attorney for Szczesny Builders, said.

Hardin gets crossing pact

Hardin Paving Co. has been awarded a contract for the construction of a railroad grade crossing at McKinley Avenue, as well as the construction of left turn lanes on Northwest Highway and the widening of Davis Street at the intersection.

Cost of the project is $296,000.

The project also includes the closing of Wilshire Lane between the alley immediately northeast of Northwest Highway and Carlyle Place.

Manufacturing zoning OKd

The village board has approved the rezoning of a lot at 517 W. Algonquin Rd. from residential to manufacturing use as requested by Fred W. Buhrke and recommended by the plan commission.

Buhrke plans to raze three buildings on the property where Texas Instruments plans to build an 18,500 square foot office building.

Flood project pacts

Contracts have been awarded for the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls flood control project to the Di Paolo Co., Niles, and Rossi Contractors, Northlake.

The projects include the construction of a new storm water storage basin between Douglas and Belmont avenues, north of the Evangelical Free Church, a four-court tennis facility, an open-air amphitheater and modifications to the existing storm water reservoir between Hickory and Douglas avenues.

The two contracts for the work total $584,000.

Fotomat proposal tabled

A request to install a Fotomat store in the Surrey Ridge Shopping Center again has been tabled by the village board because of maintenance problems at the shopping area.

Trustee Alfred Barboro reported that the managers of the shopping center have agreed to make improvements to the center, and recommended the Fotomat request be approved. Trustees Frank Palmatier and David Griffin disagreed, saying verbal agreements were no guarantee.

"We should make it clear that we won't approve any additions to the shopping center until they start cleaning up the mess," Palmatier said.

The maintenance problems include litter, garbage storage, holes in the pavement of the parking lot and shopping carts in a ditch at the rear of the shopping center, he said.

Goedke, Keelan appointed

The village board has approved the appointments of Delores S. Goedke, 1604 W. Miner St., to the senior citizens commission, and James Keelan, 2405 E. Miner St., to the board of local improvements.

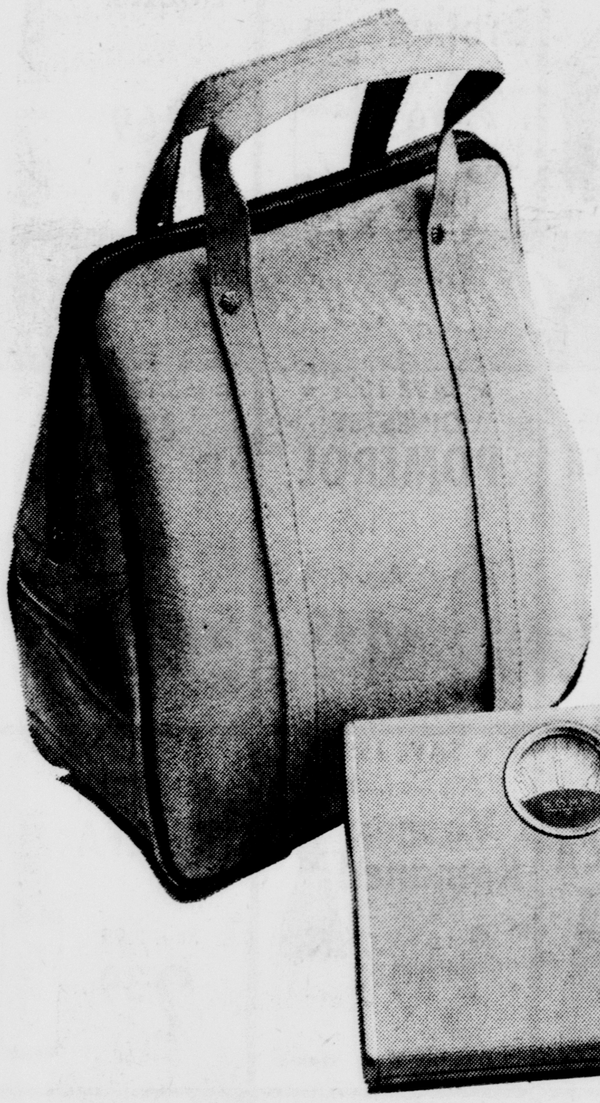
"Come in, Buffalo Grove"

Come in and win a Citizens Band Radio Transceiver or a 17-inch Zenith color TV in our Grand Opening Sweepstakes.

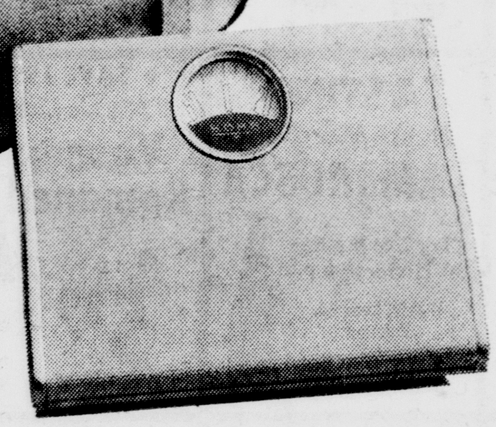
Home Federal has opened a new branch office in Buffalo Grove. It offers all the same convenient services as our other offices. And something else: a chance to win one of a dozen CB radios or one of six solid state Zenith color TV's, free.

The radio sends out and receives messages on 23 channels. It can put you in touch with other CB-ers for miles around. The TV can put a nice touch of color in your viewing. Entrants must be 18 or over. You need not be present to win.

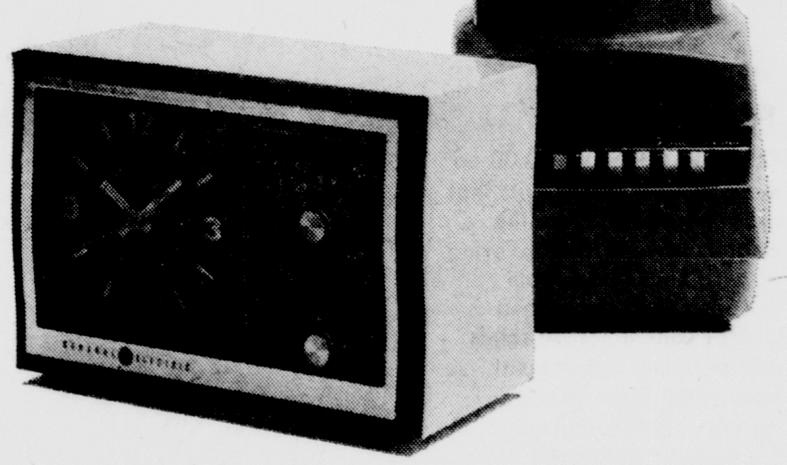


Get one of these free gifts with a $250 deposit

Open a new Home Federal 5¼% passbook account at our Buffalo Grove location with $250 or more and take your pick of this handsome travel bag or a Borg bathroom scale. Your passbook account earns interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal.



Take home one of these gifts with a $5,000 certificate deposit



Invest $5,000 or more in a Home Federal certificate of deposit (minimum 1 year) at our Buffalo Grove location, and get your choice of a Proctor-Silex 6-button blender or a General Electric clock radio. You'll also receive up to 7¾% interest annually—the highest allowed by federal regulation—if you choose our new six year certificate plan.

Invest in any of the following accounts and receive a gift. (Minimum deposit for free gift $250.00.)

Arlington bank official probed by FBI

said that the building was not locked and the building roof was deteriorating when the property was removed. "We haven't sold it," the official said.

FIRST ARLINGTON National Bank officials agreed last year to revise bank operations after ordering a private audit and after examination of bank records by agents of the regional administrator of national banks. The changes included rewriting bank loan procedures, hiring of a new executive officer and reduction of loans that do not conform to federal guidelines.

Bank President Douglas Dodds denied existence of the agreement Monday. "How ridiculous. That's a pack of vicious lies," he said.

Dodds refused to answer other questions about the bank's financial operations. "How could anybody put up a bunch of vicious lies like that?" he said.

First Arlington National Bank, with reported assets of $84.1 million, is the fourth largest bank in the Northwest suburbs.

Bank examiners are closely overseeing operations at the bank, The Herald has learned.

A SHARP INCREASE in "past due" commercial loans, loans to corporations or trusts connected with bank officials and millions of dollars of loan "sales" to two out-of-state banks were discovered by bank examiners last fall.

A bank official told The Herald that a "substantial amount" of the bank's $56.5 million in loans were "classified" or questioned by bank examiners. "Classified" loans receive special attention during follow-up examinations.

The auditors also discovered a "substantial amount . . . a greater than normal amount" of delinquent or "past due" commercial and real estate loans, the official said.

About 37 per cent of commercial loans, or $1 of every $3, were listed as delinquent by Aug. 2, 1975, a report to the bank's board of directors states. The percentage includes "past due" loans which were sold to other banks.

ALTHOUGH THE delinquency percentage was listed in an in-house bank director's report, a bank official said that the "total may not be accurate." Loan participation agreements with other banks could change the total amount of delinquent loans by a "seven figure" amount, the official said.

Commercial loans (which totaled about $14 million in August 1975) and real estate loans (which totaled about $25 million) are the bank's largest lending categories.

Both Woods and Douglas Dodds refused to answer questions about the bank's loan delinquency totals. "We couldn't operate on a day-to-day basis" if "past due" loans reached 30 per cent, Dodds said Monday.

"I don't discuss the condition of any bank," Woods said.

ANOTHER BANK official said that the "problem loans occurred, almost without exception, almost three years ago. We knew about them."

The bank recently was re-examined by Woods' staff. "Things have really improved," the bank official said. "Improvement in bank procedures has resulted in very few new problems arising. All we have to do is finish cleaning up the problems which arose three years ago or more."

Federal officials refused to discuss guidelines which identify "problem" banks. Banks with large amounts of delinquent or "classified" loan totals are targeted for close supervision by bank examiners. "Problem" banks generally receive frequent examinations, are required to change bank policies and must prepare progress reports for bank examiners.

"A problem bank does not mean that the bank is in imminent danger," said William B. Foster, the director of public affairs for the Comptroller of Currency.

Dist. 214 raps unit district study

by JUDY JOBBITT

High school Dist. 214 administrators have criticized a report on the educational benefits of forming an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district saying it is based on "innuendos, implication, assumption and falsehoods."

William Reid, Dist. 214 coordinator of research, testing and data processing, and Jack Martin, Forest View High School principal, prepared reports attacking the Illinois School Consultnts report to the unit district study committee investigating a Dist. 59 unit district.

The consultants' report presented 16 ways a unit district would improve the educational opportunities of students. A unit district would have one school board and administration for elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 currently is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

REID LISTED and criticized the consultants' 16 statements saying the report does not provide supportive material for the statements and does not provide committee members material for comparing what is currently offered with potential offerings in a unit district.

Martin outlined the benefits of being part of Dist. 214 and stated his concerns that the type of programs and program development available in Dist. 214 would be lost in a unit district formation.

Reid said the "purpose of this report card is to help set the record straight about some of the key issues and ideas that bear on that decision."

He said the consultants' report "evaluates grade school programs in Dist. 59 and secondary programs under Dist. 214 in different ways. Direct comparison, let alone appearances are difficult, because at no time in the report are elementary and secondary programs directly compared."

His reactions on several of the statements were:

- Increased local control over the educational program. He said Dist. 59 "presently enjoys representation on two boards of education rather than one."
- Greater development of a sequential curriculum. Reid said Dist. 214 "curriculum coordinators work extensively" with the elementary schools to "assure a smooth transition to high school level work for every incoming ninth grader."
- Curriculum specialists to coordinate a K-12 program. Reid said this benefit is "not likely to be realized" because "supervisory personnel with equally strong interest and background at both elementary and secondary levels are unique." He said to extend Dist. 59's central administration to cover a unit district would require an increase of administrative staff by 50 per cent.
- A stronger school-community identity. Reid said the proposed unit district includes part of four towns and unincorporated areas. "With which community should all district residents and students identify?"
- Development of guidance services for students from elementary through high school and follow-up studies on graduates. Reid said follow-up on graduates is currently done in Dist. 214 and the opportunity exists for Dist. 59 to develop a counseling program.
- More efficient use of financial resources for each student. Reid said Dist. 59 placed second in a recent survey of the cost per pupil for administration expenses in larger elementary districts. Dist. 214 spends less per pupil on administration than neighboring high school districts 211, 207 and 225.
- Needed special programs such as the bilingual program can be continued through the secondary level. Reid said bilingual instruction is provided in Dist. 214 which started a model program for Illinois in 1974.
- Ability to redistribute funds so the Elk Grove High School and Forest View facilities could be improved. Reid said the consultants' statement that this could be done without a building referendum is incorrect since it would cost about $5.7 million to remodel the schools. He said the unit district would have about $2.1 million available in the appropriate fund for this construction.

Teachers' union asks costs report

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers union has called for an explanation from High School Dist. 214 of why its administrative costs per pupil are more than twice that of its feeder elementary schools.

The union will present a report on cost comparisons with Dist. 214 at the unit school district study committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

The committee is looking into forming a unit district in the Dist. 59 area that would have one school board and administration for elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 high school students currently attend Dist. 214 high schools.

"WHAT DISTURBS us greatly is why Dist. 214 spends over twice as much per student on the central administrative bureaucracy as the elementary feeder districts," union officials stated in the report.

The report shows Dist. 214 spent $152 per student on administrative costs during the 1974-75 school year, compared to a $62 average per student expenditure in the elementary districts. Dis. 59 spent $69 per student on administrative costs that year. Only central office administrators were included in the figures.

The report also shows Dist. 214 had 10 teachers per administrator, compared to Dist. 59 which has 20 teachers per administrator during the 1972-73 school year.

The teachers presented figures showing Dist. 214 spent 9.6 per cent of the education fund budget on administrative expenses, compared to Dist. 59's expenditure of 6.1 per cent during the 1974-75 school year. Other elementary districts spent between 4 per cent and 6.9 per cent of the education fund budget on administrative expenses that year.

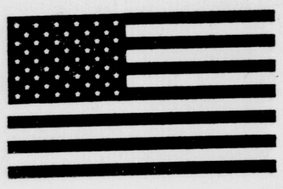
STARS & STRIPES

Number 1 in a series



FOREWORD

From its origin as the British Jack to our modern day Old Glory, our flag represents a dedication to freedom that symbolizes America.

Our flag is not made of colored cloth and stitches, but of people, of pioneers like Daniel Boone and Neil Armstrong, of soldiers who fought and died to keep it waving free, of old and young, black and white, rich and poor, great and ordinary people alike who share in common a positive act of pride in hoisting the red, white and blue symbol of our nation.

It is a genuine pleasure to present this series of articles which bring you the story of the Stars and Stripes, and the history and legends which surround it.

It is a fascinating and ageless account of our country's determination for freedom and the banner which gradually evolved to appropriately represent it.

The way we see it

Baseball is back again!

Why is it that baseball turns so many hard-working husbands and grizzled old men into little boys every spring?

There's no logical reason for the sport's generating the kind of attention it has every spring. Consider:

• Unlike football and hockey, baseball lacks the bone-crunching, spectator-pleasing violence which we've come to associate with sports.

• It is a slow-paced game which requires spectators to stare at a never-changing pattern of athletes strung out across a vast grassy field. It takes about two-and-a-half hours to complete the average nine-inning baseball game.

• The sport has changed relatively little since it was formalized about 130 years ago. Other popular national spectator sports change the rules to enthrall their audience; all baseball does is add a designated pinch hitter once every 10 years.

• Like football and basketball, major league baseball is more business than sport. It fills our TV screens during the summer to make a buck and secondarily, to entertain us. Its lawsuits often make more news than its 20-game winners.

Some nonbelievers would write that another sport has displaced it as our national pastime. We would dissent. Baseball remains our sentimental favorite.

Let Bill Veeck of the Chicago White Sox offer the best reason why, once again this spring, baseball prospers:

"Baseball is about the only unchanged thing in a constantly changing society. We have been on a nostalgia kick for years, as we're all trying to recapture a past that maybe was only illusory. But it was a past that was less complex, better ordered."

Baseball takes us home again, from the crack of the bat in a forgotten sandlot to a towering Ernie Banks home run in crowded Wrigley Field. It is hot dogs, beer and sunshine; it is the ecstasy of a World Series and the agony of a losing streak.

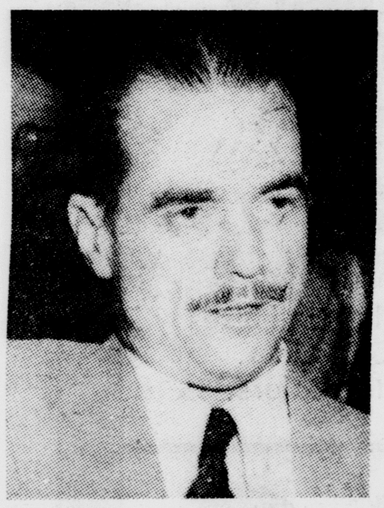
It is our past, just as spring is a glorious blossoming of memories of what has come before. And for those of us who would rather die than miss the excitement of opening day, it is here again. The Sox open at home tomorrow, and the Cubs will be home next Tuesday.

Gee, it feels great to get back into the old uniform again!

Howard Hughes

He was almost as powerful as a president.

The tales of Howard R. Hughes' far-flung empire have become part of the nation's folklore. If we are to believe the stories about this reclusive billionaire, Hughes wielded almost absolute power over the financial affairs of men and nations.



HOWARD R. HUGHES

There remain many unanswered questions about this man who avoided the public eye for 20 years. But the most absorbing is this: Could Hughes, as he acquired immense power, have believed that he was, as an attorney once told a California court, not governed by the rules that govern other men?

As he assembled his worldwide empire of corporations, land holdings, mines and other properties, did he begin to believe in his own limitless power? It sounds like a silly idea, but Hughes was no ordinary man, and in his closed-door world of power we wonder just what went on in his mind.

It's an intriguing question. Like others about Howard R. Hughes, it goes with him to his grave.

Correction

Donald Hoeck, incumbent candidate for the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education was incorrectly identified in a Tuesday editorial as a Wheeling resident. Hoeck is an Arlington Heights resident.

She has board choices

School board elections on April 10 will give Dist. 57 citizens the opportunity to express their opinions on how the district should handle the current Sunset Park school controversy. Three board seats are open, all three incumbents are bidding for reelection, plus two new candidates. The voters' decision could make the difference between a board interested in keeping Sunset Park open for the students in that area and a board looking to what would more fairly benefit all students in the district.

In a 72-page report, the Ad-Hoc-75 Committee set forth the problems of declining enrollment which will certainly lead to financial difficulty if adjustments are not made soon. The committee reported present and projected enrollments, including the possibility of additional students from new housing along Mount Prospect Road. If all our K-6 schools remain open, there will be 24 unused classrooms by 1980, a luxury we literally cannot afford. Our money can and must be put to better use than maintaining empty classrooms. Seven alternative plans are offered, five of which call for the closing of Sunset Park with various boundary arrangements. The others include closing Westbrook in favor of Sunset Park, unworkable because Sunset Park doesn't have sufficient classrooms to handle extra students and a plan to use Lincoln Junior High as a 6-7-8 grade facility.

So the experts have concluded that it is most reasonable to close Sunset Park. The problem is when. It can be done in three or four or five years, when the district's financial situation is such that no amount of rhetoric can put it off. Or it can be done soon — at the end of the 1976-77 school year. A quote from the report (though made in reference to closing at the end of this year) puts it this way:

"Postponing an inevitable, unpleasant decision is unwise, the waiting postpones and reduces the financial benefits from closing which will be needed in the years ahead to maintain the programs for children which we feel are needed and it will be easier to allot additional resources to the receiving schools to accomodate the transition during a period when the district is in a sound financial condition, as it is now, rather than when it is facing large financial deficits."

Dissension would seem to arise, then, from Sunset Park parents who understandably don't want to give up their area school. But, put another way, wouldn't they sooner lose the closeness of the school, than lose programs and services for themselves and the rest of the schools that might have to be cut to meet budget? If Sunset Park remains open, Busse school parents or those from any of the other schools, might rightfully rise up and ask why their children should be penalized, why they must pay with possible reduced programs and staffing in their schools just to keep open a smaller school that could be absorbed by the other schools.

Closing Sunset Park would send additional students to Lions Park and Westbrook. There parents might feel apprehensive that their children will have overcrowded classrooms. The projected enrollments, however, show that even at its peak, average classroom size would stay well within the 25-30 students favored by the district. Lions Park has had more students in the past than are anticipated if Sunset Park closes. Lions Park and Westbrook have more to lose in program benefits if Sunset Park stays open than in increasing their enrollments if it closes.

Those of you who have seen the logic and necessity behind the decision to reduce the number of schools can — and must — make your attitude known by voting for the school board candidates who have voiced their approval of this plan. On Saturday, April 10, vote for Pete Olesen, David Kluxdal and George Montalbano. Let's stay in control of our children's education, let's face the future now!

Issues yield many choices

Hot year for school vote

by DOROTHY OLIVER
A news analysis

Suburban schools are in crisis. Big or small, growing or shrinking, Northwest suburban school districts fact a lack of money that is forcing school boards to consider school closings, program cuts, teacher layoffs and all-around belt tightening.

The reaction to these cuts from parents and teachers alike has been strong. It has also resulted in a number of candidacies for school board elections Saturday — making 1976 one of the most active election years for schools in the history of the area.

Sixteen of the 17 elementary, high school and community college districts in the Northwest suburbs have contested races, with fields as large as 12 candidates for three seats on the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board and eight candidates for three seats in both Oakton College and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21.

Only Prospect Heights Dist. 23 has an uncontested race. The five-school district this week presented and approved budget cuts which will eliminate teachers and cut into programs.

Many of the candidates are running specifically to change the course of direction the current board has chosen.

Consider the following:

• Eugene Bradke is running for the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 board "in response to a need mainly from the Sunset Park School parents," he said. The Dist. 57 board spent most of the year trying to decide whether to close Sunset Park. This week they voted to close the school in September, 1977, over protests from Sunset parents.

• Two candidates, James Karabas and Carl Gulley have launched a formal write-in campaign in Des Plaines Dist. 62 to unseat caucus-endorstd candidates. The two were selected by Concerned Citizens for Quality Education, a group that formed after the board refused to allow parents to sptak until after a vote had been taken to cut all first and second-year teachers and eliminate all school nurses.

Both Karabas and Gully nave promised that parents will be included in board decisions if they are elected.

• Jerry Parkin, a Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 candidate, wants to safeguard the band which was pinpointed as a program that could be eliminated if cutbacks are needed. "My son is in the band and they were talking about doing away with band and athletics," he said.

There are more. "Improve communications between the board and community" has become a major plank in platforms in Dist. 54. "Don't cut teachers" is the battle cry of several Dist. 21 candidates.

Current boards justify the need for the cutbacks: local taxes aren't high enough; declining enrollment is resulting in a loss of state funds; state aid has been promised and not delivered; more and more programs are mandated by the state and the legislature declines to finance them.

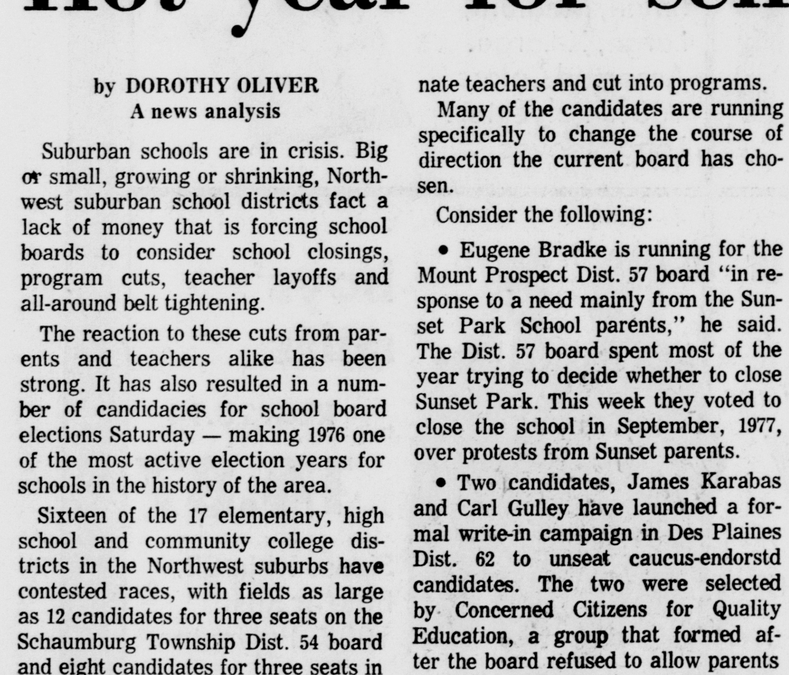
But regardless of the rationale, incumbents are being challenged. And, depending on the size of the group behind the challengers, many may be unseated.

School elections typically have a pathetically low voter turnout. In an uncontested election in 1974, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 had 225 votes cast out of a possible 31,000 — costing the district about $12 per vote to hold the election.

Arlene Czajkowski, a Dist. 54 candidate who lost her bid for reelection last year by 36 votes in a hotly contested election, was greeted by phone calls for days from friends who said, "I was so sure you'd win I didn't go out and vote."

Maybe because the election is held on Saturday, maybe because polls are open only from noon until 7 p.m., maybe because people are just plain apathetic — the reasons given for the small turnout are numerous and the annual result is the same.

The future course of action in some districts may change after the votes are counted Saturday and new board members join the ranks. Board minorities may turn into majorities and a band program, a school or a host of teachers may be affected.



He applauds election news

I would like to extend my personal thanks to the fair and objective coverage your newspapers gave in the recent State Representative primary election regarding the Fifth District.

My most sincere thanks also to the thousands of voters in the Fifth District who voted for me.

I will continue to address myself to solving the problems of the people in the Fifth District, and I pledge to them that I will continue to work for their best interests as a full time legislator.

Ted E. Leverenz
State Representative
Fifth District

Seeks other cuts

If Dist. 15 wants to cut the budget, why doesn't the school board make some cuts that wouldn't directly affect the students, namely, administrative positions. If our district will be losing 39 teachers, we definitely could stand to lose a few administrators!

Nuclear bill up for panel study

by LEA TONKIN

The Illinois Safe Power Bill introduced by State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, will come up for consideration before the Illinois House of Representatives Rules Committee by April 26.

Kay Quigg, president of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Problems, (PEP) organization, urged area residents to contact committee chairman William Redmond, D-Bensenville, to urge consideration of HB3426 as an emergency bill.

The bill would create an 11-member commission to study nuclear power's environmental, health and safety issues. A five-year moratorium on development of new nuclear plants would be imposed under the measure. Mrs. Quigg said such issues as the transportation and disposal of nuclear materials would be considered by the commission, if the Safe Power Bill gains passage.

Mikva survey shows decline in food prices

The latest results of a suburban food price survey indicate the cost of meat and grocery items dropped sharply during March.

The survey, which is conducted by aides to U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, examines prices in 26 supermarkets in the congressman's district, which includes Des Plaines and Maine Township.

The survey indicated meat prices dropped 9.5 per cent between February and March. The cost of a sample market basket of 27 items dropped 4.7 per cent according to Mikva.

The average price for the market basket at Des Plaines supermarkets dropped 5.1 per cent.

Mikva noted drop in meat prices was the first time a decline was noted in each of the stores surveyed since the project was started in June 1974.

Price decreases in particular items were noted for round steak, down from $1.70 per pound to $1.35; and bacon, down from $1.76 per pound to $1.48.

Price increases were reported for eggs, up from 73 cents to 79 cents per dozen.

A third grade girl dribbles past a boy in an Arlington grade school P.E. class.

Pre-teens idolize high school girls

(Fourth in a six-part series on women in sports — past, present and future.)

by PAUL LOGAN

Although it was hardly equal ae first, Illinois high school girls were given an opportunity to play many interscholastic sports in the 1970s.

The sports spotlight — always beaming on the boys — began to shift. Girls started receiving some of the glory.

With the addition of basketball, gymnastics and badminton tournaments next year, all the girls sports will have state finals to showcase their talents.

The Mid-Suburban League, located in the Northwest Suburbs, underwent a tremendous period of growth over the last four years. What was it like being in the mainstream of these changing times? Only this year's graduating senior athletes know for sure.

Girl athletes felt some peer group pressure in the early 70s, but it has lessened quite a bit recently, according to Heidi Giesler, a multi-talented star at Fremd.

"The first couple of years you sometimes heard 'There goes the girl jocks!'" said Giesler. "The only people who say that now are the ones who feel threatened."

She and her athletic friends didn't let such comments affect them. "A lot of people seem to feel all girl athletes are the same — just sports hungry and not feminine. The more people got to know us, they realized that they were wrong. They found out that we're people, too."

Giesler helped lead Fremd to a 41-0 record in four years of basketball. Her first season was possibly the most challenging. "We had a lot of problems getting any gym time at all. So we decided to come in from 6:30 until 7:30 a.m. We were determined somehow to practice."

"We'd always be pushed up on the little (gym) shelf to do our thing," recalled Linda Webb, another versatile player who starred for Conant in basketball. "Now it's getting a little more equal.

"Guys are starting to accept girls in sports. They thought we would only dribble, dribble and pass. They couldn't believe how rough we were ... The boys have started to come to our games."

Webb is nicknamed "H.Q." because this 5-foot-10 center-forward was Conant's homecoming queen. It's a common occurence in Iowa because girl athletes are among the most popular people in school. That it's finally happening here shows that being an athletic young woman is more accepted.

Girls wearing letter jackets is something else again.

"It started up sophomore year," said Clare Dowling, a superb all-round performer at Hoffman Estates. "Some of the guy didn't like it but the girls got to be in the varsity club. From then on they got jackets. They (guys) thought it was easier for a girl to get a letter in a varsity sport.

"I played with guys and I'd be the worst one. I was so aggravated that I'd try even harder. I think girls had to work harder. No wonder they're better than girls — they've played all their lives. Given the opportunity, we'd be just as good," said Dowling, who has lettered in six different sports.

When Dowling was growing up, her three older sisters were embarrassed because "I preferred to play with the boys. They wanted me to play dolls. Once in awhile I did.

"When I used to play as a 10-year-old, they (girls) couldn't catch or throw the ball or anything. Now they (youngsters) have more interest in it. They're not called tomboys. It's accepted now," added Dowling.

None of these three prep standouts had a woman athlete they could idolize as youngsters. Although it might come as a surprise to them, today's pre-teen athletes look up to the high school stars.

"They see their pictures in the paper," said Charlotte Mass, a veteran P.E. instructor at River Trails Junior High. "The (little) girls think it's so outstanding that they (big girls) get the coverage."

Junior high girls can identify with the high schoolers much more than with the Chris Everts and Billie Jean Kings. The prep players are associated with team sports.

Mass, who was just recently named Mount Prospect's Teacher of the Year, has enjoyed a lot of success at the junior high level. Many of the top players at Hersey High School were coached by her. Some of them drop by to help work with the younger girls. This really makes an impression.

Girls' skill development has increased tremendously over the last couple of years, according to Mass. Since girls are being taught the basic athletic skills in grade school, coaches like Charlotte can devote more time to practices and competition. It also has helped in the transition to co-ed P.E. classes.

Developing a mutual respect between girls and boys must start in the grade school P.E. classes. Mel Bartlett, a teacher at both Wilson and Kensington schools in Arlington Heights, considers this a vital part of his job.

Bartlett tries to run his co-ed classes as democratically as possible. When he recently held a fifth grade intrmaural basketball tourney, there were mixed teams. Three players made up a team with at least one of the opposite sex on each.

"One of the girls said, 'I'm no good.' I told her to look at everybody else and told her I didn't think everybody was better. She turned out to be one of the better girl players," said Bartlett.

"It worked out real well. I found it to be a big benefit for the girls, who had just played sports with girls before. And the boys learned teamwork instead of just showboating."

Major league baseball opens Bicentennial schedule

by FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Major league baseball, disrupted by player-owner squabbles which threatened the start of the season, opens its Bicentennial campaign on schedule today with the defending world champion Cincinnati Reds hosting the Houston Astros and the Milwaukee Brewers entertaining the New York Yankees.

An owners' lockout of spring training camps for the first 17 days of March shortened the exhibition schedule considerably, but the bitter and still unsettled contract hassle between the owners and players doesn't appear to have dampened the spirits of the fans.

The Reds, baseball's oldest professional team, report a sellout crowd will be on hand at Riverfront Stadium for the National League's traditional opener, and a near capacity crowd is expected at County Stadium in Milwaukee to see the debut of new Brewers' manager, Alex Grammas, and watch baseball's all-time home run king, Hank Aaron, begin his final campaign.

Right-hander Gary Nolan, who bounced back from an arm injury to post a 15-9 record last season, will open for the Reds against 6-foot-8 right-hander James Rodney Richard while the Yankees will send their ace, right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter, to battle against right-hander Jim Slaton.

Eight more openers — four in each league — are set for Friday.

The Reds, who defeated the Boston Red Sox in seven games last October to win their first world championship in 35 years, return possibly a stronger team than a year ago and manager Sparky Anderson has flatly predicted his club will be champions again this season.

"We'll win it all," says Anderson, beginning his seventh year as Reds' skipper. "Our fans won't be satisfied with anything less. I honestly believe that, overall, this is the strongest club I've ever taken north."

The Astros, beginning their first full season under manager Bill Virdon, are going through a rebuilding stage. Veterans, such as Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson, are still around but the Astros are counting on the improved play of youngsters Enos Cabell, Larry Milbourne and Wilbur Howard to improve on their sorrowful 64-97 record of 1975.

Billy Martin is starting his first full season as manager of the Yankees and, with the aid of principal owner George Steinbrenner and an assist from the hotel barber, is giving the Yankees a new look. The team will rely heavily on speed this year as opposed to the power-hitting style of the past, and speedsters Mickey Rivers and rookie Willie Randolph are being counted on to make up for the loss of power-hitting Bobby Bonds, who was traded.

Grammas, who coached at Cincinnati for six years, brings a fiery spirit to his new job as manager of the Brewers. He will need patience, too, as the Brewers are one of the younger clubs in the American League. Only Aaron, first baseman George Scott, third baseman Don Money and outfielder Bobby Darwin could be classified as "seasoned" veterans.

'The obvious choice' leads Masters field; Nicklaus is favorite

AUGUSTA, GA. (UPI)—The Masters tournament begins today, and that means it's time to remind everyone just who's the boss on the progolf tour.

You remember his name, of course. It's Jack Nicklaus.

Four other players won at least two tournaments in the first three months of this year, and three of them surpassed $100,000 in winnings. Some of them might like to claim Nicklaus' throne for themselves, but all of them know better.

"Jack has an edge," concedes Hubert Green, the winner of three tournaments in succession last month and the leading money winner on this year's tour. "It's talent. When he's playing bad, he still plays good."

Nicklaus, the top money winner of all time with more than $2.6 million and winner of a record 16 major championships, including five Masters titles, is the defending champion here.

"I haven't played as well this year as I did coming in here last year, but I still feel like I've played fairly well," Nicklaus said Wednesday.

"I don't think we ever play as well as we'd like to — but I'm not unhappy with any part of my game."

In five tournaments this year, Nicklaus has a victory — in the Tournament Players Championship — a second, seventh, 11th and 18th place finishes. He has won $90,608.

Last year's Masters, the 39th, was probably the most exciting ever played. Nicklaus won it by a stroke over Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, when they both missed makeable birdie putts on the 72nd green.

No one knows if a repetition of those dramatics is possible, but regardless of what transpires, virtually everyone expects a similar result.

"How can you pick against Nicklaus?" asks Gay Brewer, a former champion here. "How can you do it?"

"He's the obvious choice," adds Bobby Nichols.

Still, there's no shortage of contenders in the 72-man field that begins play at 8:30 a.m. today over the fabled Augusta National course.

For starters, there are Green, a winner of $132,006 this year; Hale Irwin and Ben Crenshaw, who both also have won two tournaments and more than $100,000; and Miller, the other double winner.

Miller has won 14 tournaments since his record-breaking victory in the 1973 U.S. Open, but he's still searching for that elusive second major championship.

JOHN WALLNER, the No. 2 singles player for Arlington's tennis team, grins as he lines up a winner in his match. Wallner hit winners all night to top Bob Schuckles of Conant 6-1, 6-0. Arlington whipped the Cougars 5-0 to win their 92nd straight Mid-Suburban League dual meet.

Csonka signs grid pact with Giants

Fullback Larry Csonka, whose bone-jarring running powered the Miami Dolphins to two straight Super Bowl championships, signed a million dollar, multi-year contract with the New York Giants Wednesday night.

Announcement of Csonka's surprise signing was made jointly by the 29-year-old fullback, Wellington Mara, President of the Giants, and Club General Manager Andy Robustelli at a hurriedly called news conference.

Specific terms of the deal were not announced, but it was reported that Csonka received close to the $250,000 per year contract he had been seeking from the Dolphins, who lost his services to the World Football League two years ago.

"It's great to be here," said Csonka. "It's nice to be here and have a deal worked out at this early stage. It's nice to be able to know where I am and get my head together. It's tough being a football player in the off-season without a team." Csonka said Giant Coach Bill Arnsparger was the biggest factor influencing his decision to sign.

"The biggest reason I chose New York was Coach Bill Arnsparger," he explained. "I got to know him in Miami and I think he's a great coach. I know we'll work together well. Also, this is New York. The promotional possibilities are just great. Everyone wants to be a pro athlete in New York and here I am."

Seattle saddles Bulls, 115-114

Tom Burleson's two hooking layups in the final minute of play powered the Seattle Supersonics to a 115-114 triumph over the Chicago Bulls Wednesday night. Willie Norwood came off the bench cago Bulls Wednesday night. Willie Norwood came off the bench for 24 Seattle points including 12-of-12 from the free-throw line while Chicago was paced by Mickey Johnson's 27.

Bulls' coach Dick Motta was ejected with nine seconds remaining in the first half as he watched his team squander an 11-point first-quarter advantage into an eight-point deficit at the intermission.

John Laskowski poured through 11 first-quarter points to thrust the Bulls into 21-10 command, but the Supersonics countered on Bruce Seals' dozen points and 14 second-quarter points by Fred Brown to assume a 56-48 cushion.

Bears pick 10th in draft

The National Football League's college player draft, delayed two months by legal complications, opens its two-day stand today with Leroy Selmon of Oklahoma and Chuck Muncie of California almost certain to be the first two picks.

The expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers won the right to choose first in the college draft at a special drawing last December and from all indications, Coach John McKay will select Selmon, the 6-foot-2, 260-pound defensive tackle who led Oklahoma to the national college championship.

Seattle, the other new club, will pick second and the Seahawks are expected to grab Muncie, the 6-3, 225-pound running back who helped restore California as a football power in the Pacific Eight Conference.

The remainder of the first round has New Orleans picking third, followed by San Diego, New England, the New York Jets, Cleveland, Detroit, Atlanta, Chicago, Cincinnati, New England, the New York Giants, Kansas City, Denver, Detroit, Miami, Buffalo, Miami, Baltimore, New England, St. Louis, Green Bay, Cincinnati, Minnesota, Los Angeles, Dallas and Pittsburgh.

New England had the most first round selections, three, earning the two extra picks in the deal which sent quarterback Jim Plunkett to San Francisco.

The teams draft in inverse order of their final standings last season, with the exception of the Super Bowl clubs, which pick last. Ties were broken by allowing the team which faced the weakest schedule based on percentage to select first and alternate each round.

The draft will run its usual 17 rounds but Seattle and Tampa each will have 25 picks or eight extra choices in their initial draft. Selection is expected to end Friday night.

Cubs, Sox win in final tuneups

The Chicago Cub defeated the Cleveland Indians, 2-1, Wednesday, completing the exhibition season for both teams. The Cubs finished with a 7-6 shortened spring record after a horrendous 6-16 record last year. Cleveland finished 6-8 this spring.

The winner was Geoff Zahn, a lefty who had arm surgery last winter. He went six innings, giving up the only Indians run, a tremendous homer by Boog Powell. The Cubs scored both their runs in the third inning off loser Pat Dobson on singles by Dave Rosello, Zahn and Bill Madlock and a double by Rick Monday.

Madlock, the National League batting champion last season with a .354 average, led the Cubs hitting this spring with .382, getting 13 hits in 34 at bats.

Bucky Dent's two-run homer in the fifth ignited a four-run rally and moved the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The White Sox scored two unearned runs in the fifth off Cards' starter Pete Falcone on Buddy Bradford's bases-loaded single. Rich Gossage, Chicago starter, gave up four hits and one run in six innings of work.

ABA chief remains calm in storm

While there is growing pessimism that the proposed sale of the Kentucky Colonels to a local syndicate is further proof that the American Basketball Association is about to collapse, Commissioner Dave DeBusschere remains optimistic about the league's future. DeBusschere, in town for a ceremony honoring former Colonel players, said despite the sale, he saw a bright future for the ABA.

"I think, in my point of view, we have gone through a tough season and have had a lot of problems," he said. "Right now, I haven't felt there was more enthusiasm in the league than in any of the time that I havt been associated with it — and that's been two years."

Lions romp; Falcons win debut

St. Viator ran its overall record to 4-3 Wednesday with a resounding 8-0 spanking of Loyola Academy. Mark Rusche spun a nifty three-hitter, walking six and striking out seven.

The Lions presented Rusche with the only run he needed in the first inning as Jim Thompson began a big day at the plate with a booming triple.

Viator stretched the lead to 2-0 in the third when Thompson doubled in Jim Kane and assumed 3-0 command in the fourth when Kevin Mulroy doubled home Bill Robin.

The Lions put the decision on ice in a five-run sixth inning that featured Mike Hermanson's double, two Loyola errors and a pair of two-baggers by Mike Maude and Mike Murray.

FALCONS DEBUT WITH WIN

Forest View rode the six-inning, one-hit pitching of Jim Giblin to a 5-2 opening-season triumph over Wheaton-Warrenville. Giblin walked two and whiffed seven before yielding to the shutout hurling of Rick Richter.

Forest View got two in the first when Bill Simon forced a run home with a walk and Jim Petran contributed a sacrifice fly and added two more in the seventh on Simon's sacrifice fly to center and an error.

WARRIORS TIE, 4-4

If aces were wild, Maine West would have a pat hand as the Warriors added a darkness-shortened, five-inning 4-4 tie against New Trier East Wednesday for an overall 1-1-1 record.

After spotting New Trier a two-run advantage in the top of the first inning, Maine West stormed back with a four-run outburst in the bottom of the frame.

Buddy Doroskin started for the Warriors and was touched for four runs and four hits in three innings despite walking four and fanning seven. Earhart held the Indians scoreless in relief.

BRONCHOS CRUNCH FREMD

Fremd came up with too little too late at Barrington Wednesday and dropped their second exhibition outing in three tries, 12-3.

By the time the Vikings reached the scoreboard, the Bronchos had already strafed starting Fremd hurler Matt Fox for nine runs in three innings and added another tally off relief pitcher Greg Schroeder in the fourth. Meanwhile Barrington twirler Carl Shellenbach was sailing along with a perfect game.

Steve Peters finally broke up the no-hitter with a single in the fifth and after Ron Lahey walked, both runners raced around on a throwing error off the bat of Dale Hallberg. Tim Hanisch drove in the final Vike run with a single to right.

FIRST WHEELING SETBACK

A three-run outburst in the first frame was all that Libertyville needed to turn back hosting Wheeling Wednesday, 7-2.

The guests also hopped on Wheeling starter John Miller for another run in the second and two more in the fifth in sending coach Ron DeBolt's squad down to defeat for the first time this season. Wheeling had tied their only previous outing.

For the home squad, Bob Terreberry walked and stole second to lead off the first and then came in on Glenn Barry's single. Terreberry also crossed home in the third, reaching on a single, stealing second, holding up on Rick Heredia's infield hit and scoring on the front end of a double steal that drew an overthrow at third.

Libertyville	310	020	1—7-5-2

KNIGHTS FELL FENTON

Kevin MacBride's one-hit pitching highlighted a 7-0 Prospect victory at Fenton Wednesday, in a game curtailed by darkness after five innings.

MacBride walked only two and whiffed nine while his teammates provided him with a variety of scoring plays.

In the second an error and a stolen base preceded Kevin Curtin's run-producing single and Curtin later scored when Scott Doney's long fly was muffed. The Knights rang up another pair of runs in the third on walks to Tim Davies and Burt Thomas, a single by Kirk Lebica and a two-run base rap by Dave Landes.

In the fourth Keith Kallberg scored on a double steal and Davies was later balked home. A final Prospect score came in the fifth when Lebica singled, stole second and third, and zipped in on Dave Thoma's base hit.

Girls open in softball

by PAUL LOGAN

Last year's top two teams figure to be the favorites again as the Mid-Suburban League girls' softball season opens this afternoon.

The Hersey Huskies of Coach Nancy Sullivan have six starters back from a team that won the North Division and then the conference title. The Huskies will host Conant, starting around 4:30 p.m.

Other matchups have Elk Grove at Arlington, Hoffman Estates at Wheeling, Schaumburg at Fremd, Prospect at Palatine and Forest View at Buffalo Grove.

Two of Sullivan's veterans are all-conference players — pitcher Cathy Weadley and Kim Cashmore.

Weadley, a senior, was one of the most consistent pitchers in the league last spring. Her speed has increased this year without losing accuracy, according to Sullivan.

"Pitching has never dominated our league," said the Hersey coach. "From what I hear, the pitching really dominates the game there (southern Illinois). Here, defense really dominates. So I think all the coaches have worked to improve pitching."

Sullivan must fill spots at first, second and third, but she's confident her new starters will make the defense just as strong as in 1975.

"This year I think we're stronger than last," she said. "Because of our freshmen, we have a lot more depth. At every position I have a backup person. We've got six outfielders."

Prospect, winner of the South Division, lost a thriller to Hersey in the title game, 15-13.

The Knights of Prospect coach Nancy Dallia will look familiar to their opponents for they also have six starters. Half of those were all-conference — senior left fielder Dorothy Nee, junior first baseman Lou Sandstrom and junior pitcher Carol DiPrima.

"We're going with two pitchers this year," said Dallia. "A sophomore is going to pitch quite a bit — Pam Mache. She didn't pitch too much last year."

Mache, who is faster than DiPrima, also has shown greater control than she had last year. Mache might be starting against Palatine, according to Dallia.

"The pitching was slower last year (around the league), but I think it's going to be a lot faster this year," she said.

Graduation left openings at short, third and center, but Dallia said she had some talented people to fill the gaps.

Besides the battle for conference honors (June 1), the state will be holding its first tournament. The Districts will begin May 10. They'll be followed by regionals, sectionals and the finals at Pekin (June 3-4).

Grammas is realistic about Brewer chances

(The following is another in a series of major league baseball sizeups.)

SUN CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — You have to admire rookie manager Alex Grammas.

He not only is being honest with Milwaukee Brewers fans but himself as well this spring.

"Don't expect us to win the division or even come all that close," says Grammas, who as a coach with the Cincinnati Reds the last six years, knows what it takes to win. "All we will be looking for is improvement, and if we get it, we'll think about winning in 1977."

It isn't often a manager, especially one in his first year, will be that candid, because in the spring every club wins a pennant. Grammas says he likes his team and thinks it can be a very good one but a lot will depend on the pitching.

"Pitchers make winners out of managers," says Grammas. "I think we have some pretty good arms on the Brewers but I don't believe they are good enough to take us to a division title, not this year anyway. Our power is better than most teams and we will score a lot of runs but I'm not that sure of the pitching, and pitching is what makes ordinary teams good ones."

Strengths: The good hitting Grammas talks about is built around George Scott, Darrell Porter, Sixto Lezcano, Don Money, Robin Yount, Charlie Moore and Henry Aaron. Aaron, of course, will be playing his final season and Grammas says he feels Henry will make a contribution. The Brewers also have one of the best infields in baseball with Scott at first, Pedro Garcia at second, Yount at short and Money at third.

Weaknesses: The pitching staff which will be made up of starters Pete Broberg, Jim Slaton, Jim Colborn, Bill Travers and Tom Hausman and relievers Billy Champion, Ed Rodriguez, Bill Castro and Tom Murphy. One spot remains open and it probably will be filled by Jerry Augustine.

New Faces: Augustine and Hausman, both rookies, and veteran outfielder Vada Pinson.

Outlook: The Brewers won 68 games last year and Grammas is shooting for 13 more victories for a .500 year. Don't be surprised if he pulls it off because all the young Brewers need now is a nudge in the right direction from a winner such as Grammas.

Cleveland hopes for fast start

(Another in a series of major league baseball sizeups.)

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — "We have no weaknesses," Frank Robinson says, tongue in cheek and a big grin on his face.

"Honestly, I feel so good about my team this year, that sometimes I think we have no weaknesses," he says when you ask him about the Cleveland Indians and their prospects for the 1976 season.

"The only trouble is," Robinson continues, "we could improve tremendously and still not go anywhere. I think the American League East is the toughest division in baseball with the Boston Red Sox, Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees all there up ahead of us.

"We could surprise, though, but that would be only if every single man on the Indians played to his potential. We have no super stars on this team, so every man has to carry his share of the load. Right now, I feel good about our team because we have good balance. I like our power and defense best of all. The pitching will be good but you know, no one ever has enough pitching."

Strengths: Solid catching in Ray Fosee and Alan Ashby, good infield in Boog Powell, Duane Kuiper, Frank Duffy and Buddy Bell, home run sock with Powell (26) and George Hendrick (24) and starting staff of Pat Dobson, Dennis Eckersley, Jim Bibby, Fritz Peterson and Rick Waits.

Weaknesses: Bullpen, where only Dave LaRoche is a solid performer, an outfield that isn't set except for Hendrick in center, and a thin bench.

New faces: Fosse, who came over from Oakland, Dobson, who won 11 games for Yankees last year, reliever Stan Thomas from Texas and infielder Larvell Blanks from Atlanta.

Outlook: Indians played best ball in A.L. after the All Star break last July with Robinson moving in youngsters every chance he got. If club plays as well at the start this year, could pass Yankees for a solid third place windup. Probably not good enough to challenge Baltimore and Boston.

BEGINNERS
Sharks 3, Barracudas 2
Shark Matt May dominated play and scored twice while teammate Michael Zarob scored once. Barracuda tallies were by David Williams and Randall Moore.

Seals 1, Gators 0
The Seals won on a tally by Rich Berens, a shutout for goaltender Steve Bracci, and excellent performance by Todd Janney, Steve Christensen, and Jeff Jetel.

Dolphins 2, Sting Rays 1
Fine defensive play by Dolphins Danny Hibner and Louis Schager, assists by Steve Chope, Matt Lopresti, and Schager, plus goals by Dave Raby and Derek Ruzbasan, eked out narrow win over the excellent play of String Rays Kurt Tierney, Matt Babler, Jeff Krohn, and scorer Greg Kist.

Sharks 1, Marlins 0
The Sharks won as a single shot by Matt May slipped past the careful net protection of Kevin Keane. David Zeiger and Brian Schiller shared credit for the shutout.

JUNIORS
Panthers 4, Alley Cats 3
The Panthers won on goals by Scott Padgett (2), Dan Schuman and Billy Hibner. The Cats spread their scoring evenly among Larry Kast, Tom Dahlborn, and Bruce Peterson.

Bobcats 8, Cougars 4
The Bobcat offense charged ahead with four goals each by Paul Haddock and Dan Raby, assists by Mike Lopresti and Danny Moller, and fine center half play by Steve Pozdro in the face of good defense by Cougars John Miller and Mike Hibner. Cougar goals were in pairs by Craig Hartman and Dave Pederson.

Tigers 5, Pumas 4
This was a tense game all the way with scorers Steve Pejchl (2), Mike Jennings (2), and Tom Schager and halfback Matt Kouzes starring for the Tigers. Outstanding for the Pumas were Buddy Schwenk, Sean Malloy who racked up two, and Tim Castello and Dan Hogan who put in one apiece.

Jaguars 5, Wildcats 0
Wildcats Dean Herndon and Steve Bryant did their best to defend the goal, but good effort and hustle by the Jaguars overwhelmed them. Jag goals were by Mark Anderson (2), Mike Zilligen, Ken Magee, and Danny Schager. Sam Kraus earned the shutout.

Cheetahs 5, Lions 4
An exciting game all the way, but the Cheetahs led in the end with two goals for Mike Polizzi and Paul Burgess, one for Chris Jergenson, three assists and sharp passing by Todd Bleecker, and good defense by Mark Dammes. Lions' goals were by Jamie Trzeciak, Tom Maloney, and Dave Kini (2).

INTERMEDIATES
Blue Jays 2, Swifts 1
Mike Sauer at fullback kept the Jay goal almost clear while teammates Rich O'Keefe and Steve Stolarz scored. But good field play by Swifts Pat Murphy and Dave Graveline enabled Mike Updike to put one in past the Jay defense.

Turkeys 4, Orioles 0
Turkey goals were by Dave Shoaf (2), John McDaniel, and Rick Ruzbasan. Jim Castello earned the shutout and Steve Horness did an outstanding job at fullback.

Cardinals 6, Flickers 3
Matt McElman led the Cardinal onslaught with three goals, followed by Clark Lush, Tom Seeley, and Scott Tuitt with one each, and backed up by good work from Greg Gildea and Tom Mueller. Marc Andre scored twice for the Flickers and Dave Christensen once.

Hawks 3, Eagles 3
The last game of the weekend and the last tie: for the Hawks; Chris Benson - 2, Jim Martin - 1, Tom Chernesky - 1 assist, Pete Kouzes - 2 assists, Mark Hogan and Brian Hetzel - commendations for steady defense. For the Eagles: - Kevin Barrett, James Joll, and Bob Drozd - one goal each; John Yarnwood and Mark Wolter - commendations for defense.

Roadrunners 6, Condors 2
Chris Abbick led a well-coordinated Runner squad to victory with three goals (one on a PK, one alone, and one on an assist from Brett Hartman, followed by Billy Murphy with two, and Hartman with one (assisted by Murphy and Abbick). Jon Ousler starred for the defense. The hustling Condors were led by Jim Francis who scored twice (on assists by Rich Jackowski and Chris Thibodeau) and by Steve Mick and Tim McCarthy in the backfield.

SENIORS
Rams 2, Bears 1
The Bears, and particularly Mark McLean in midfield, dominated play, but could make the net only once on a direct kick from Charlie Marsland. Ram winning goals were by Dan Spooner and Keith LaMasse.

Gazelles 0, Rams 0
Wolves 5, Beavers 2
Wolf goals were by Jim Nannini (two; one alone and one assisted by Joel Brown), Brown (assisted by Rick Pulse), James Burke (assisted by Parker), and Matt Parker (assisted by Pulse and Ian Kincaid). Beaver goals were by Chris Braun and Tom Seiter (assisted by Rich McElman).

Impalas 5, Mustangs 2
Scott Guettinger led the Impala scoring with two, followed by Andy Deutschmann with a successful PK and an assist. Evan Privett with a single, Dave Castillo and Rob Parenzan with assists, and Jim Rance with a citation for good halfback play. Jeff Inwood and Craig Harding made the Mustang goals and Ed Lange was cited for good defense.

GIRLS
JUNIORS
Jeans 2, Jolly Green Giants 1
The Jeans won the first round on goals by Nancy Kraulter and Kathy Delanty and excellent field play by Gloria Petersen. Cindy Curylo booted in the lone Giant score

Soccer Boppers 3,
Sun Devils 0
The only girls' hat trick of the weekend was made by Soccer Bopper Michelle Boudreau on assists by Karen Barnett and Mary Beth Barrett, while the stalwart defense of Laura Carlile and Debbie Logan plus the shutout play of goalie Mary Margaret O'Brien held the Devils scoreless. Mary English and Christe DeFatta were Sunday's outstanding Sun Devil players.

Streakers 1,
Jolly Green Giants 0
The Streakers squeaked in on a single goal by Sue Ullmer on an assist by Cathy Maher and good defense by Christine Caviolo and a shutout job in the nets by Maribeth Lydon. For the Giants, Cindy Curylo, Tracy Carlson, and Mary Maloney had a very fine outing.

Flaming Tigers 1,
Royal Runners 0
The Tiger win was on a single goal by Carol Thielen on an assist by Jane Randall. Goalies Thielen and Vanessa Hadley earned the shutout.

Green Machine 0, Skylarks 0
The day's first tie was brought off by Machine goalies Susan McGregor and Justine Zamback, defensive players Denise Andre and Jenny Joll, and offensive star Denise Shipley. Equally strong were the Skylark goalie, Diana Stocker, and backs Susan Groves, Sharon Scolpino and Leslie Damme.

Golden Eagles 2,
Red Barons 1
The Eagles flew to their first victory on goals by Nancy Shellander and Kelly Cernok (assisted by Cindy Chope) and fine defense by Marilee Richards and May Kay McShea. The Baron tally was by Beth Herndon.

SENIORS
Golden Eagles 2,
Orange Blossoms 1
The Blossoms put up a sturdy game with fine play by Kim Smith and one goal by veteran Sue Fraser, but the Eagles were stronger — in particular backs Mary Jo Skangel and Joan Naughton, forward Kitty Naughton, and scorers Donna Veshuroff and Laurie Obey.

Grasshoppers 3, Bumblebees 3
The girls' second tie of the day resulted when good defense by Grasshopper Lisa Moore and goals by Lauree Small, Lori Norys and Nancy Melberg were balanced by great net tending by Bee Goalie Michelle Repplinger and scores by Sue Chernesky (2) and Cathy Cernok.

Golden Eagles 2, 76'ers 0
The Eagle goals were by Donna Veshuroff and Anne Lange. Goalie Kitty Naughton earned the shutout.

TRAVELING TEAMS
Celtic Midgets 11,
Green and White 0
Celts Mike Hogan, Dave Graveline, Rick Ruzbasan, and David Eck scored twice each, and Brian Reed, Rick Drozd, and Jim Castello scored once. Castello and Graveline who also manned the nets, shared credit for the shutout.

Suburban Sport Celtic 10,
Real F.C. 0
Celtic scores were by Andy Deutschmann (a hat trick), Jay Babler (2), Evan Privett (2), Charlie Marsland, Jeff Seiter, and Jim Rennie. Eric Hartman earned the shutout.

Celtic Juniors 1, Rams 3
The Palatine goal was on a penalty kick by Brad Byker.

Ask Andy

Bicycle designs span centuries

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Becky Cooley, 17, of Stockbridge, Ga., for her question:

WHO INVENTED THE BICYCLE?

Bicycles are two-wheeled vehicles enjoyed at one time or another by just about everyone. Though once thought of as a child's toy, the bicycle is now being used by older folk for transportation to and from work, short errands and plain old fun. And why not! It is a good form of exercise; it doesn't require expensive fuel, and it doesn't add pollutants to our atmosphere.

Drawings of vehicles resembling bicycles date back to about 1580, but the first bicycle that we pin a date and a name to appeared in 1790. It was invented by a Frenchman, Comte Mede de Sivrac, and called a celerifere. Made of wood, it had a crossbar that connected the two wheels. The rider sat on a saddle and propelled the machine by running. One serious drawback was that it could not be steered.

Recognizing that a steering mechanism of some sort was needed, inventors went to work, and by 1816 one was ready for the market. Invented by Baron Karl von Drais, it bore his name — the drasine — but it was also called the walk-along and the hobby-horse. Although it had a steering mechanism connected to the front wheel, it was still powered by sitting on a saddle and running.

About 1839, Kirkpatrick MacMillan, a Scottish blacksmith and inventor, added a shaft and treadle to the machine that was now called a velocipede. For the first time, the machine was propelled without the feet touching the ground. For some reason, however, MacMillan's velocipede was not very popular and only a few of them were produced.

The invention of the rotary crank by Pierre Lallement was the next major advancement in bicycle design. Lallement was granted a U.S. patent for his invention in 1866. Ernest Michaux bought the patent and became the first person to manufacture and sell bicycles.

In time Michaux added solid-rubber tires and ball bearings to his machines. He also changed the size of the wheels. The front wheel grew to five feet, while the back wheel shrank to a short 12 inches. This increased the speed of the machines, but also increased the danger in riding them.

In the 1880s the safety bicycle was introduced. It was called a safety bicycle because both wheels were more nearly the same size, so you didn't have as far to fall as you did with a high-wheeler. Air-filled tires, coaster brakes, adjustable handlebars and gears have since been added to produce our modern bicycle.

Just as automobile drivers must obey certain rules, so must bicycle riders. Laws vary from state to state, so to be on the safe side check with your local police department for the up-to-date laws for your area. Whenever you ride, however, it is always a good policy to be super alert.

Andy sends a student globe to Patricia Dunn, 11, of Surrey, B.C., Canada, for her question:

WHERE DO WE GET HELIUM?

Helium, a chemical element, is a gas second in lightness only to hydrogen. It is an inert gas, which means it does not combine with other elements. Five natural-gas fields in the United States yield most of the world's helium. These fields cover areas in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado. To obtain pure helium, the natural gas is cooled until all the gasses except helium, argon, hydrogen and nitrogen change to liquid. The hydrogen is then burned off, and the argon is absorbed by charcoal at low temperatures. Nitrogen often remains as an impurity.

Helium is lighter than air and will not burn. These and other unique properties make helium especially useful in industry. Heliarc welding, for example, uses a blanket of helium blown over certain metals to protect them from oxygen in the air. If oxygen were to reach the metal, it could cause it either to burn or corrode. Helium is also used in rockets, airships and weather balloons. Persons with respiratory ailments often breathe a mixture of helium and oxygen, because this mixture enters the lungs more readily than air. Deep-sea divers also rely on this mixture to avoid an illness called the bends.

Prof takes winning line

The student was watching the Professor play. He had just learned about the principle of restricted choice.

The Professor won the club lead with dummy's ace and cashed dummy's king of trumps. The queen fell from the West hand.

"Aha!" thought the student, "I am going to see a finesse for the jack."

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Much to the student's surprise the Professor led a second trump and went right up with his ace. This time poor West had to produce the jack and the Professor proceeded to make his contract with two overtricks.

"How did you know that the jack was going to drop?" asked the student.

"I didn't," replied the Professor. "I had nothing to gain by a finesse since if East had started with four trumps to the jack he would have made a trump trick whether or not I finessed. This time my play of the ace gave me a chance to gain a trick and no chance to lose one.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Awareness — answer to water shortage

by LYNN ASINOF

Just as there were bread lines in the 1930s, public works directors from the Northwest suburbs are predicting there may be water lines in the 1980s unless a serious effort is made to conserve water.

Estimates are that by 1980 there will be water problems in the area because of rapidly declining well levels. The problem is regional and the long-term answer is Lake Michigan water.

A short-term solution, however, is water conservation, which starts at home.

"If we do something now, it might give us the time we need to get water from an alternate source," said David L. Creamer, Mount Prospect's public works director.

A GROUP OF public works directors, organized through the Northwest Municipal Conference, is putting together a program to teach people how to conserve water. They all agree that the first step toward conservation is making people aware of how much water they use.

About 41 per cent of the water used in the home is flushed down the toilet, while another 37 per cent is used for bathing and washing, according to U.S. Geological Survey figures.

Everytime a cigaret butt or a spider is flushed down the toilet, between six and seven gallons of water goes with it. One load of laundry takes between 35 and 70 gallons of water, while a leak only 1/32 of an inch in diameter will cause a loss of 12,333 gallons over a two month period.

Buffalo Grove's public works director Charles McCoy said there would be a tremendous water savings if "we can get people to fix the leaks and not leave the hose running when they wash the car."

CREAMER SUGGESTED two relatively simple ways to check for leaks. He said the homeowner should read his water meter before going to bed and then check it again in the morning. By making allowances for trips to the toilet and the water softener, Creamer said it should be easy to see if there has been any water lost.

One type of toilet leak can be unmasked by putting food coloring in the water tank. If the color slowly trickles into the bowl, the seal is not tight and water is being wasted.

Much has been made of the brick-in-the-toilet-tank method of water conservation, but both manufacturers and the public works directors agree there are more effective methods.

"BRICKS ARE a device that some people use, and it may have some savings," said Earhart Buford of American Standard. "But when you design a toilet to flush, you engineer it with certain size waterways."

Buford said that by arbitrarily reducing the amount of water in the toilet tank, the flushing capabilities will also be reduced. He said new water-saving toilets, designed to use only 3½ instead of 6 gallons of water, are a better approach to water conservation.

John Maienshein, manager of plumbing product sales for Crane Co., said the water conservation market has been growing steadily for the past year or two. He said many areas, including Baltimore and California, are now passing laws requiring installation of water saving toilets and other equipment.

"It will become a national requirement before too many more years," Maienshein said, noting that the entire plumbing industry is developing a line of water-saving products.

OTHER DEVICES to hit the market in recent years include flow restrictors that fit onto faucets and showers. Most plumbing manufacturers make these fittings which cost under $10 and cut water usage from 30 to 90 per cent. This means not only a water savings, but also a reduction in fuel for hot water.

"If you use 31 gallons of water for an average shower, the shower head fitted with this device would save 18 of those gallons," Buford said of the American Standard fixture. "That will give a satisfactory shower for water pressures in excess of 20 pounds."

Don Prokup of Chicago Faucet, Des Plaines, said devices manufactured by his company restrict shower flows to three gallons per minute instead of the 6-15 gallon range. Faucets, which normally run at 3-6 gallons per minute, can be cut to ¾ gallon per minute with flow restrictors.

"You're not only saving water, you're saving hot water and that is saving natural gas," Prokup said.

Buford said the energy crisis gave a boost to the water conservation effort. "It has taken on added significance since the fuel shortage of 1973-74," he said, "because it takes electricity to pump water and then of course you heat it and use it. It is a significant thing."

WATER SAVING devices are available through plumbing contractors, although the public works directors said they planned to contact local hardware stores about carrying some of the flow restrictors.

Water conservation also has an effect on sewage treatment. "If you take a gallon of water away from each flush of the toilet there is that much less to process at the other end," said James Scanlan of Eljer Plumbingware Division, Wallace Murray Corp., Rolling Meadows.

The local push for water conservation will surface in force the week of June 7, when the public works directors sponsor their "Water Awareness Week."

The public works directors hope to see the results of their water saving campaign this year and are optimistically aiming for a 10 per cent reduction. They say, however, the real test will come around 1980.

"This is the type of thing you plant your seeds now and hope to reap something in about four years," McCoy said.

Leak diameter at 60 PSI	WASTE every 2 months (Gallons)	COST (at $1.00 per 1000)
1/4 ● inch	787,666	$787.00
1/8 ● inch	197,333	$197.00
1/16 • inch	49,333	$ 49.00
1/32 • inch	12,333	$ 12.00

Water conservation solves problems, creates others

Conservation may solve one water problem in the Northwest suburbs, but several others are likely to surface if water usage is cut dramatically.

Water sales, for example, are the mainstay of many municipal budgets. Any serious reduction in water sales would leave local governments financially up a creek.

"We need to address ourselves to the problem of what happens to the system if water conservation works," said Gene Willroth, Arlington Heights' director of public works. He is chairman of a special committee of public works directors studying area water problems.

Few towns have water rate structures that could absorb a massive reduction in water sales, since system maintenace and bond retirement costs are built into usage rates.

CHARLES McCOY, Buffalo Grove's public works director, said communities could protect themselves by adopting rates that include three or four separate charges.

McCoy said the cost of maintenance and bond retirement should be covered by a flat fee for all customers. An additional amount would be charged for the amount of water used.

A similar flat-fee and usage-fee could be set up for the sewers, McCoy said.

"What we need is a rate that would offset the decrease of sales in water consumption," Willroth said. He said city fathers will want financial assurances before throwing their support behind a conservation program.

SEWERS MIGHT cause another problem if water usage is cut. Willroth said a certain velocity is needed to keep the sanitary sewers unblocked and self-cleaning. He said a reduction in the water flowing through the sewers might lead to an increased need for sewer cleaning.

"We're going to end up two years from now in many other areas because of what we are starting now," McCoy said, noting other areas would probably be affected by a successful water conservation effort.

David L. Creamer, Mount Prospect's public works director, agreed that the push for water conservation would start a chain reaction. "Everything we do affects somebody else."

THE AVERAGE shower will use 31 gallons of water. Most people don't stop to think about how much water they use. Public works directors in the Northwest suburbs are trying to change that.

U.S. to use wind to provide electric power

In one year wind power will provide some of the electricity used by homes and businesses under an experimental program announced recently by the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration.

ERDA will choose four sites to install wind-turbine generating systems — modern windmills ranging in power from 125 kilowatts to 1.5 megawatts.

Unlike old-fashined windmills, the modern wind turbines will have long slender blades shaped like high-speed airplane wings.

THE 1.5 MEGAWATT turbines will have two blades about 200 feet in diameter and will be the largest wind turbines ever built.

ERDA has asked utility companies and other electric service organizations to propose sites and offer installation and operation plans for the test program.

Only sites with strong, continuous winds will be considered since the wind generators need winds of 20 miles per hour to reach full potential.

Each generator will operate for about two years, feeding electric power into existing local utility lines.

The purpose of the program is to determine the operating characteristics and economics of wind-generated power for possible commercial application.

New York's fiscal fate costs Dow 15 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — A gloomy forecast for New York City's fiscal future rekindled default fears Wednesday and drove prices sharply lower along a broad front in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 2.44 points Tuesday in a late session selling wave, closed behind 15.43 at 986.22. The closely followed indicator had been behind only about two points until early afternoon when New York business leaders told New York Congressmen the city was not curing its financial problems despite federal loans and will eventually default.

Declines held a commanding lead over advances, 1,195 to 335, among the 1,876 issues crossing the tape.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 1.15 at 102.2, the NYSE common index fell 0.63 to 54.50, and the average price of an NYSE share decreased by 40 cents.

Volume totaled 20,190,000 shares, down from the 24,170,000 shares exchanged Tuesday, the busiest day since 32,605,470 shares were traded March 24.

The market opened in minus territory with investors cashing in on profits rolled up Monday and early Tuesday, but selling accelerated after the New York City business leaders' outlook for the city marked a complete turnaround from the optimistic appraisals delivered before Congress last week by city and state officials.

It is widely feared a default by the nation's investment capital would severely disrupt the equity markets and interfere with the economic recovery.

Analysts also said investors were disheartened by the market's failure to sustain Tuesday's early rally, which sparked hopes a new assault was underway on the 38-month high set by the Dow March 24 when it closed at 1,009.21.

Senate panel OKs antitrust reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a sweeping antitrust bill that would impose premerger notification requirements on businesses and give the states authority to recover price-fixing damages in behalf of their citizens.

The bill, approved 8 to 5, would also give the government broad new investigating powers to obtain documents, testimony and other information from businesses and other parties in pursuit of antitrust actions.

But the measure's most controversial provision — which is strongly opposed by President Ford — would allow states to seek treble damages from business found guilty of price-fixing or other antitrust violations.

Attempts by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., to modify or restrict this section of the bill were defeated.

Both senators said it was of "doubtful constitutionality" which would result in "windfall profits" for attorneys hired by the state to prosecute the cases.

Under the provision, price-fixing damages would be returned to the class of consumers injured, with some of the money going to the state for public programs.

Costs force changes in road plans

Substantial changes in the state's road building plans will be required because of a combination of federal regulatory delays, skyrocketing construction costs and increasing diversions of highway construction funds for administration, maintenance and operations of other state agencies.

This is the major conclusion of an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce analysis of the road program released April 1. The state chamber report, part of a series of studies on the state's budget and fiscal health, shows the problem is compounded by a dwindling supply of money, coupled with inflated costs of maintenance and new construction.

"It is imperative we review our road priorities and revenue resources at once before we're forced by lack of funds into decisions which may not be in the best interests of citizens and businesses which rely heavily on the state's road system," said Lester W. Brann Jr., president.

Brann said the state chamber will establish a special task force to examine this critical problem and make recommendations on the future of Illinois' road program. "We're finding that the motor fuel tax increase of 10 years ago, designed to carry most of our road-building priorities to the year 1990, falls far short of meeting our goals," Brann pointed out.

"Inflation and the energy crunch have combined to make present road projects more extensive than ever. Highway construction costs have jumped an estimated 67 per cent since 1971 and 119 per cent since 1967. "This means that while we may be spending more on building roads, we're getting less for our money," Brann said. "In fact, highway modernization and repair is down 5 per cent through inflation."

"Add to this the fact that we're resorting more and more to the use of Road Fund monies for purposes other than building roads. Diversions for State Police, Secretary of State operations, the courts, Amtrak subsidies and other agencies total about $129 million —or about 20 per cent of the FY 1977 budget. In FY 1975, diversions totaled about 15 per cent of the Road Fund budget, Brann said. "Operational costs of running the Dept. of Transportation are also up. IDOT expenses have increased 33.3 per cent in six years while revenues have risen only 12.7 per cent.

"Operations of the department now take approximately 41 per cent of the revenues generated by motor fuel taxes and vehicle fees, compared to 36 per cent in 1972. Roadbuilding has also fallen victim to bureaucratic red tape. At least 17 major federal directives must now be followed in building a road, causing at least a seven-and-a-half-year time lag from a design proposal to letting a road contract on Illinois federal aid projects. It's estimated that environmental studies and the impact of inflation have combined to add 30 per cent to the cost of roads in the past five years. Some 70 to 80 agencies are currently involved in approving each federal aid project.

Bed display at Wieboldt's in Randhurst

Wieboldt's in Randhurst and Serta Mattresses are exhibiting a collection of miniature rooms through Saturday. The show titled "Beds of America" is a Bicentennial look at how we have been sleeping for the last 200 years.

The rooms are authentic duplicates in one-inch-to-the-foot scale. The rooms were created by the noted historical miniaturist, Eugene Kupjack, who is responsible in part for the Thorne Rooms at Chicago's Art Institute.

Each of the 14 miniature rooms bears a legend which describes the bed, its sleeping surface and the sleep related artifacts in the bedroom setting. These displays also provide an insight into the history of our quest for a good night's sleep.

Know the difference

Wants, needs important in stretching your budget

by MERLE E. DOWD

Whether you call them wants or needs, necessities or luxuries, your spending can usually be divided into two categories. Some individuals and families confuse the two, or they are not sure which is which at times. To manage your money effectively, you really should understand the difference.

Part of the problem revolves around definitions. A "want" for you may be a necessity for another. Also, for some people wants assume a bad moral connotation, as if wanting something is wrong or even sinful. Not so. We all have needs. And, unless we admit to a few wants, life can be grim.

Needs or necessities are obligations we all face. We need food, housing and clothing. But, if we buy a color television because we want it and agree to pay installments over the next 12 months, those payments become an obligation. Before buying, the television was a want. After you bought it, making the payments became a need. Thus, you can convert a want to a need by buying on the installment plan.

Needs, then, account for spending you can do llittle about after the fact. Because you can exercise little decision over paying, needs are nondiscretionary. Spending for a house you really enjoy combines a need and a want. Buying heating oil to keep your dream house warm and toasty becomes a need, as you get very little inner satisfaction from paying an oil bill, or for trash disposal.

Wants, on the other hand, are discretionary. If money is short, satisfying pressing needs may force you to do without something you would like to have. Wants form the expansion joints in your money plan, as they can stretch or contract to suit dollars available. You can change spending wants more easily than you can change spending for needs.

If you are currently operating a spending plan and are tracking spending regularly, take a few minutes and mark each expenditure with an "N" for need and "W" for want. If you have trouble deciding which is which, ask yourself, "Could I cut this off without any trouble?" You could not easily avoid making a car payment. But you could postpone buying a new dress or a new pair of slacks.

Examine expenditures marked "N" and "W" for a pattern. What percentage of your money goes for needs? How much for wants? Avoid weighing decisions on some moral scale. However, we tend to get more enjoyment out of things and services we want rather than those we need.

An excess of needs leaves a spending plan inflexible. When most of your spending goes to satisfy commitments, little money remains to satisfy wants. Payments on needs that were formerly wants restrain spending on new wants. That's one of the problems with wants — satisfy one and another immediately pops up.

Good money management aims for reducing spending on needs and increasing spending on wants. Examine needs by asking these questions: "Must I continue spending? Can I reduce spending? Can I substitute something else that costs less?" For example, you own a car used for both commuting and pleasure driving. It is a big, old car built for the days when gasoline was readily available and cheap. Now, it needs repairs and gasoline costs five to six cents per mile.

Your answer to question No. 1 is, "I need the car, so I must continue spending." Your answer to question No. 2 is, "I could trade the car in on a little gas squeezer. The new payments would increase my overall transportation spending rather than reduce it, but, for the long term, spending could be less." Your answer to question No. 3 is, "I could ride the bus or join a car pool as a substitute for driving to work. Spending would immediately decrease, but inconvenience would increase."

You may decide to ride the bus to reduce spending. But, you really want a new car that would cost less and still allow you to drive to work. Only you can decide which alternative suits you best and which keeps your needs-wants spending in balance. Question spending for other needs and wants similarly to improve your management skills.

• Cadillac dealers set an all-time period sales record in the first 10 days of March and raised the calendar year total to 55,100 domestic deliveries, a pace greater than the division's best sales year, 1973.

According to Edward C. Kennard, general manager of Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors, "The 9,243 deliveries in March 1-10 are 12.8 per cent ahead of the record for the period, 8,196 set in 1971, and this is over 61 per cent better than the first 10 days of March a year ago.

"The January 1 through March 10 sales total is 55,100 compared to the division's best year ever, 1973 when domestic deliveries in this period were 53,945," Kennard said. "Comparing this sales pace to last year, Cadillac sales are 52 per cent greater for the same period."

Business picking up: distributors

Distributors of heavy construction equipment in the Midwest are more optimistic about the business outlook for 1976 than their primary customers, contractors in the heavy construction industry, based on a C.I.T. Corp. survey of distributors and construction companies.

Both groups, however, agree that recovery from the recession in their industry will be moderate.

Survey questionnaires were sent by C.I.T. to both equipment distributors and contractors in the heavy construction industry in all areas of the country. Responses were received from 58 equipment distributors and 203 contractors in Chicago and the Midwest. Survey results show:

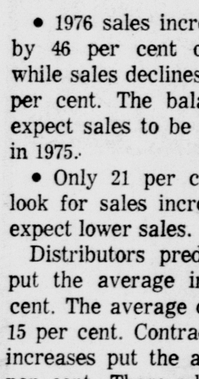
- 1976 sales increases are expected by 46 per cent of the distributors while sales declines are forecast by 17 per cent. The balance, 37 per cent, expect sales to be about the same as in 1975.
- Only 21 per cent of contractors look for sales increases; 35 per cent expect lower sales.

Distributors predicting sales gains put the average increase at 19 per cent. The average decline expected is 15 per cent. Contractors who look for increases put the average gain at 17 per cent. Those who say their sales will drop put the average decline at 16 per cent.

In the profit forecasts, more distributors expect gains in 1976 net income than declines. The margin here is 36 per cent to 26 per cent, with the remainder looking for profits to remain level. The average increase is put at 16 per cent, the average decline at 15 per cent.

Forty-one per cent of the contractors say they look for profits to decline by an average of 25 per cent. Twenty-three per cent expect gains averaging 25 per cent. The balance say profits will be about equal to those of 1975.

The Midwest distributors included in the C.I.T. survey do the bulk of their business with contractors in road building and maintenance. Industrial construction and mining are other types of companies served by the group.



LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Some people are frightened into staying in a house which they have outgrown by thoughts of the taxes they might have to pay if they sold. In some cases, such fears are unfounded.

In the first place, permanent improvements to your home are treated as an addition to your cost. If you add a room, install a swimming pool or an additional bathroom, your cost for such improvement is added to what you paid for the house in determining your total cost for the purpose of determining your capital-gains tax. Painting and other ordinary maintenance expense is not considered as an "improvement" and does not affect the cost basis.

We're Real Estate experts, not tax experts, but we can give you some ideas on what to ask your tax advisor . . . it could save you money and our advice costs you nothing! Stop in or "Call Us," anytime!

We congratulate our 4 office leaders for the month of March. Their combined sales volume of more than $950,000 helped our company establish a new all-time record for residential sales volume for any single month. They also played a big part in helping 2 of our 4 offices establish new monthly sales records. Our March volume of more than $3.5 millions was the highest in our 26 year history. We are sincerely proud of our entire staff and grateful to our many clients and friends.

Texans fight to keep 'paradise'

WEST GALVESTON ISLAND, Tex. (UPI) — Thirteen years ago, Gus "Slim" Holland and his wife fuund an acre of peace and quiet surrounded by a hermit's dream of nature.

Now all the tranquility on their tree-shaded lot near West Bay is threatened.

"Progress!" Holland snorted. "It means high-priced houses and high-powered boats, killing West Bay for profit."

A planned 475-lot resort subdivision by the Mitchell Development Co. would encircle the Holland's property and drastically alter the balance of nature, Holland contends.

The couple bought and carted dirt to their lot and packed it by hand to raise the level higher above the water line. Mrs. Holland crawled beneath their old home thousands of times, pulling a child's wagon filled with dirt to shore up the foundation.

Holland, 56, could help but little. He was disabled in a paint fume accident at Todd Shipyard four years ago and draws disability retirement and Social Security.

The Hollands don't intend to just give up. Joined by a number of others they are fighting the subdivision and have asked Army Engineers to deny the building permits for environmental reasons.

Roseate spoonbills, ducks and other waterfowl nest in ponds in the prairie and sloughs along the bayshore. If the land is filled for the subdivision, the fowl will leave, Holland says.

Mitchell plans to dredge shallow Eckerts Bayou which is now filled with flounder, redfish and trout.

"Everybody in Houston could come down here and catch fish if they left the bay alone," Holland said. "But if they keep filling the bayous and marshes, there won't be anything in the bay 10 years from now but hardhead catfish and they won't want their fine homes here any more."

The Holland home cost $8,250, and the lot is lush with trees and vines including plums and grapes from which Mrs. Holland makes jellies. Their chickens, four dogs and a cat roam the nearby prairie and oak grove, and quail and doves feed with the chikens.

"We bought the place for the quiet," Holland said. "We thought we'd

The company offered Holland a swap of "five or six acres and a house trailer" in a remote area near Navasota, and Holland is considering it although "progress" will eventually reach that area, too.

"I'll be dead before it does," he said. "At least, I hope I will."

SIMPLY SYBARITIC: Here's a nice mix of old ideas and a new platform — for sleep. In a lower-level bedroom, the owners used heirloom furniture, old stained-glass panels, new plants and new Milliken "Color Palace" plush carpeting to top floor and platform.

Platform theme gains popularity

Your home
by Carolyn Murray

It hasn't taken long for the new platform idea to develop a following. Readers have been asking how platforms of all kinds work in the home and apartment. So today we show another variation of the platform theme, this one covered in "Misty Moss" from Milliken's "Color Palace" line of Anso nylon carpet.

The platform is simply a wood box built to support activity. In rooms where living/dining spaces merge or share an L-shaped arrangement, it's a delight to see a platform supporting the dining table and chairs. It's surprising how just raising a table group 8 to 12 inches creates a new look.

Dining platforms are usually the lowest, two stair risers at most. If properly planned, they also work for the living area, as extra sit-down space, especially along with floor cushions that can be stacked in a corner or spread around.

When measuring for a dining platform the rule of thumb is to allow safe, step-back room behind each chair. So do a test run. Have a team of friendly researchers (your family) sit at the table, then push chairs back and stand up behind their chairs. Measure the outside space used for these actions. That should be the minimum area planned for the platform. If possible, an additional foot of floor space behind each place setting would be ideal.

Seating platforms are great because you can build them at a height that fits your family configuration. No more falling down into the depths of a sofa or feeling like your legs are dangling. Using the same researchers, get a good average knee height and perhaps even the dimension from knee to back in a seating position.

Seating platforms don't have to connect to a wall. You can create islands in the center of a space. The same principle is true of sleep platforms. But for the bedroom the only height consideration is personal preference.

Do you like the climb-up feeling of the four-poster bed? Or is a lower, closer to the floor look your choice? Again width and length seem more important.

The most practical bed platforms allow some extra width for seating or book-resting or coffee-cup holding. And if you're into platforming it, why not include a backrest level? This could become a resting place for reading lamps, clock, radios and all those accoutrements we can't presleep without.

If there's a talented carpenter in the clan, get him to sneak in some storage under the platform. Why let that space go to waste?

By all means carpet the platform. That's half the fun.

Keep adequate records to avoid extra home taxes

With Chicago area home prices rising 8 to 10 per cent a year, the potential tax burden is one of the important reasons for people selling or buying homes to keep detailed records.

This precaution, which comes to mind as another tax-filing season approaches, is especially relevant to anybody who sold a house in the last year, said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of its residential sales division.

"Any profit on the sale of a house is taxable income, subject to certain allowable deductions," he said. "The only exception is when you buy another used home, or if you're building a new home, that costs as much or more than the price you received for your present home. In this case, the tax is postponed."

The buyer may also incur certain expenses, such as interest on a mortgage loan, or related fees, that can be deducted from the 1975 tax return. However, Walters' advice to buyers is directed more toward the day when they may sell that home.

"The surest way to avoid paying big tax bills when the time comes to report a sale is to be aware of and take advantage of all legitimate tax deduction allowable," he said.

"And the time to start your record keeping," he said, "is when you buy the house."

For example, let's say you purchased a home in 1960 for $25,000 and sold it in 1975 for $36,000. "If you didn't keep records, you might wind up paying tax on your profit, a capital gain of $11,000, the difference between what the house cost you and what you sold it for," he said.

"If you purchase another existing residence for $36,000 or more within 12 months of the sale, you will not be taxed on the $11,000 gain for the current tax year," he added.

However, many of the costs of buying and selling the house as well as improvements made during your occupancy can be subtracted from the "profit" to reduce your eventual tax liability.

Here's a hypothetical case of how you benefit by keeping accurate records over the years you owned the home described above:

When you purchased the home you paid $200 to your attorney to handle the deal, and another $200 for title search and insurance, recording survey and appraisal fee. This added $400 to the purchase price, which can eventually be deducted.

Four years later you added a bedroom at a cost of $4,000; you replaced a water heater for $125 the following year; added a bathroom for $2,500 in 1970; repaired the roof eight years later at a cost of $300; repainted in 1970 for $900. Most of these improvements can also be subtracted from the "profit" when the house is sold. In this example, $6,500 would be deductible.

Expenses incurred for the water heater, roof, and paint job are considered routine maintenance and non-deductible as improvement costs, with minor exceptions.

When you sell the house, you also pay selling expenses, including the broker's commission, attorney's fees, advertising costs, mortgage satisfaction fee, state tax stamp, and title abstract. Total selling expenses: $2,500, which is deductible.

Briefly, here's how it adds up:

Selling price of home	$36,000
Selling expenses	2,500
Allowable improvement costs during ownership	6,500
Purchase price	25,000
Purchase expenses	400
Difference	$ 1,600

If you don't buy another house within the allotted time, this $1,600 is the amount on which you pay a capital gains tax. However, if you buy another home at a cost equal to or in excess of the adjusted price, the tax is postponed.

"Also, if you could have deferred certain fixing-up expenses such as repainting within 90 days of putting your home up for sale, this is considered a selling expense and may lower the amount of gain on which tax is postponed. This couldn't have been accomplished without record-keeping," Walters said.

"But if you require clarification of any point," Walters said, "consult with the IRS or your tax accountant or attorney. Important sums of money may be involved."

Firm experiences healthiest year ever

1975 a boom year for real estate sales

Real estate sales made a dramatic recovery in 1975 at William L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, according to Ralph H. Martin, president. Total sales volume for the calendar year 1975 was the highest in history with $20,500,000.

Residential transactions totalled 401, representing a dollar volume of $18,800,000 with $4,650,000 coming from the new Arlington Heights office which opened up in early 1975. Total sales volume for the residential division increased by $6.6. million, an increase of 30-plus per cent...

Martin said that the availability of mortgage money in late 1975 and improved interest rates on mortgages led to these record breaking statistics. He said the biggest disappointment has been a slow start by builders in new house construction, which triggers many home sales. With new home sales and construction increasing, existing home-sales should pick up vigorously this spring.

Kunkel's commercial-investment division had one of its slow years due primarily to the inability to attract investment capital for real estate projects and the sluggishness of business recovery during most of 1975.

Volume was just under $2 million, a decrease of approximately 30 per cent from the previous year's high. Frank J. Kotnaur, newly elected vice president and director of Kunkel's commercial-investment division predicted that sales volume will double in 1976 due to the increased activity in the last sixty days for both investment properties and leasing of commercial, office and industrial space. Several new projects which were shelved during 1975 will be revived to increase commercial sales and leasing activity in 1976.

Now in its forth-ninth year, Kunkel, a full-service real estate firm transacting residential, commercial and investment sales and leasing is predicting a 20 per cent increase in total sales volume for 1976. Increases are anticipated in both residential and commercial sales. Martin said "our highly trained full-time professional sales people who make up the competent staff of real estate representatives will assure the company's continuing growth in 1976."

Both Des Plaines and Arlington Heights residential offices are now members of the 'Homes For Living Network,' a national referral and marketing service accommodating corporate transferees from throughout the United States.

The opening of the new office in Arlington Heights, Rand and Arlington Heights Road, early last year will show the greatest growth, according to Martin's prediction. John R. Bye, newly elected vice president and Arlington Heights manager, now has a full sales staff which should double the volume and number of transactions completed in 1975.

February building pacts leap ahead of 1975 level

February contracts for new construction retreated seven per cent, seasonally adjusted, from January's higher total but showed a strong gain from a year ago. Both the first two months of 1976 were "well ahead of their depressed 1975 counterparts," said the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

February contracts for future construction work of all kinds, at $6,149,248,000, was 22 per cent greater than the amount contracted a year earlier, when the recession was nearing bottom. The seasonally-adjusted Dodge Index of total construction contract value for February was 170 (1967 - 100), a seven per cent decline from January's 183. At this time last year the Dodge Index was below 150.

"Our big change in construction markets in recent months is the displacement of last year's 'energy boom' (power plants, refineries, pipelines) by an even greater volume of housing," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge.

"With statistics no longer being dominated by last year's extraordinary outpouring of energy-related construction, we are better able to observe the progress of the cyclical pattern in construction markets," Christie said. He noted that "not only is housing's recovery now well established, but nonresidential building finally appears ready to turn up and, in fact, may be making its turnaround right now."

The recovering residential building market in February reached a total contract value of $2,545,502,000. Christie pointed out that over the past twelve months housing activity, as reflected by the number of dwelling units, has expanded by nearly 50 per cent and by more than 60 per cent in the value of new homes and apartments started.

"In February, as in prior months, the composition of housing starts heavily favored single family units, which accounted for 75 per cent of new construction. But the still depressed apartment market was beginning to show signs of revival," Christie said.

February contracts for nonresidential buildings, at $1,995,830,000, were six per cent below their year-ago value. According to Christie, they may now be in the early stage of recovery from the cyclical low reached toward the end of 1975, almost a year after housing hit bottom. On a seasonally-adjusted basis, contracting for nonresidential buildings rebounded nearly 20 per cent from December to January, and held that gain through February.

It's not a good investment

Don't rehabilitate home before selling

Mr. Meltzer on real estate
by Bernard Meltzer

Because it is only natural for owners to want to get the highest price possible when they sell their houses, many take the advice of writers who advise putting the house in excellent condition by rehabilitation before offering for sale.

Though this seems reasonable, it is bad advice.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have read countless articles advising prospective sellers to put the homes in excellent condition prior to offering them for sale, in order to get the highest price.

After living in our house for 25 years, our children have grown and flown the coop, and the house is too large for just the two of us. So we plan to sell it. We have received estimates for putting in a new heater, electrical wiring, modernizing the kitchen, etc. They are exorbitant!

Do you think that this would be a wise investment?

—ON OUR WAY OUT.

In spite of what many people believe, spending large sums of money modernizing and rehabilitating a house prior to sale is not a good investment. In most cases, the most a homeowner should do is fix up the house in a superficial way by painting, papering and repairing obvious defects. Large sums of money spent are almost never recovered at the time of sale.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We are about to convert our basement into a recreation room, so that our teenage children can entertain their friends. They do a lot of dancing.

I would like to put down a wooden floor instead of vinyl or asphalt tile. I seem to recall being told that wooden floors should not be put over concrete.

Is this true?

—NEED EXPERT ADVICE.

Experience has shown that a wooden floor over concrete warps, buckles and is subject to rotting after a few years.

Even though the concrete floor may seem to dry, there is a considerable amount of moisture drawn through the concrete by capillary action and other means.

There are methods of sealing off moisture and allowing for the circulation of air beneath the floor. This type of job, though, is expensive. Unless you feel you want to spend a good deal of money, stick with asphalt or vinyl tile, or one of the many similar products on the market.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My company has just transferred me to another city, and so I must sell my house.

The real estate broker has suggested that my wife and children remain in the house until it is sold. I hate the thought of being separated from them for as long as it will take to sell the house.

Do you agree with the real estate broker? Do you think there is any logic behind his reasoning?

—LOVE MY FAMILY.

Yes, I agree with the real estate broker. A house that is occupied usually sells more quickly than a vacant one. When a house is without furniture and rugs, it is likely to appear shabby. The rooms very often even look smaller.

Much as you are devoted to your family, it makes sense for you to offer the house in an occupied, furnished condition.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am one of those "crazy clean" women that people often talk about. If my house is not spotless at all times, I'm miserable. My husband thinks I'm a nut.

My problem is that I can't work up a lather — I guess the soap doesn't dissolve properly in water. But when I soak my cleaning cloth in the water and go over the woodwork, for example, all I get are streaks. Being the way I am, this drives me up the wall.

Do you think I am using the wrong soap, or what?

—JUST A NUTTY PERSON

Your problem is very simple. You are bedeviled by nothing more complicated than hard water. The chemicals in the water, when combined with the materials in the soap, form waxes and gums. This results in streaks and no lather.

Your problem can be solved by having a water softener installed and connected to the incoming water pipe. You would do well to seek advice from your local plumbing inspector or municipal engineer as to which type would do the best job, since the type of chemicals causing hard water and the degree of hardness differs from locality to locality.

Realtor, EUGENE MATANKY, has become the first broker in the United States with five major real estate designations to his credit including the CRSS.

Matanky is the first Realtor in Illinois to receive the designation of Certified Real Estate Securities Sponsor by the Real Estate Securities and Syndication of the National Association of Realtors. This past year he was awarded the designation of Certified Commercial Investment member, after eight years of study and preparation. He previously graduated as a CPM (Certified Property Manager), a GRI (Graduate Realtors Institute) and a CRB (Certified Realtor Broker).

Eugene Matanky

Matanky brokerage offices include the main office at 5250 Broadway and the Rogers Park office at 2723 Devon in Chicago. In addition the firm has a condominium office at 3300 Lake Shore Drive and a mangement office at 220 S. Roselle, Schaumburg.

RALPH MARTIN, president of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, represented the Illinois Association of Realtors at the mid-winter meetings of the National Association of Realtors, in New Orleans, Feb. 4 through Feb. 10.

As first vice-president of the Illinois Association of Realtors, Martin attended the Education Committee's-Subcommittee, annual conference, GRI, and an indoctrination course. He also was in attendance at the combined state and board forum, and at the regional meeting "Perspective 76," and the regional caucus meeting with Donald I. Hovde, regional vice president for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Martin has been active in the Illinois Association of Realtors for nine years, holding such positions as District I vice president, secretary, treasurer, second vice president and is currently first vice president. He is past president of Northwest Suburban Multiple Listing Service and the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Martin is also vice president of the "Homes for Living" Network, a national real estate, referral and marketing service. He has received the designation of Graduate, Realtors Institute of Illinois for completing the three stage seminar sponsored by the Illinois Association of Realtors.

Industrial growth dips in suburbs

Industrial growth rates for the North suburban area served by Commonwealth Edison Co. during 1975 were generally slower than corresponding 1974 growth rates, said Anthony Enrietto, vice president of the utility's Northern division.

Enrietto said he is optimistic about future growth possibilities. He said many firms citing needs for abundant and economical energy supplies have been looking to the northern Illinois region served by Edison for possible future development.

Edison's Northern division extends from the Chicago city limits to Wisconsin between Lake Michigan and the Woodstock area.

Enrietto explained that there were about two-thirds as many firms participating in growth activities during 1975, which resulted in about half as much floor space being occupied and a 66 per cent slowdown in employment growth rates, compared to similar 1974 data.

Citing figures supplied by the utility's marketing development department, Enrietto said that the number of available sites, acreage and buildings in this division increased in 1975.

"At the close of 1975 there were 297 available industrial sites covering some 17,500 acres and 131 vacant industrial buildings with an aggregate of about 8 million square feet of floor space," he said.

This compares with 1974 year-end figures of 260 sites on 15,386 acres and 85 vacant industrial buildings with 6.2 million square feet of available space.

More than 56 billion kilowatthours were used by Edison customers in 1975, according to Enrietto, who said that more than one-third of the company's output came from its nuclear generating stations. He also said that Edison expects to produce about half its power from nuclear fuels by the mid-1980's. "At present," he continued, "90 per cent of Edison's power is generated from coal and nuclear fuels."

Home upkeep survey in mail

Questions on expenditures for the improvement and upkeep of residential properties will be asked in a sample of households in this area by Bureau of the Census interviewers now through April 15, said Forrest P. Cawley Jr., director of the bureau's regional office in Chicago.

The home improvement survey, conducted four times a year, yields valuable information on this segment of the American economy which is of interest to many government agencies and private groups. The sample households in this area are among the approximately 5,200 throughout the United States that will be included.

Total expenditures for the upkeep and improvement of residential properties in the third quarter of 1975 were $7.6 billion, or $25.5 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate. During 1974, the seasonally adjusted annual rate ranged from $19.7 billion to $21.9 billion.

The law requires that information reported to the Bureau of the census must be held in strictest confidence. Published reports show totals only. No information identifying individuals or households is released.

Conversions of farm structures appeal to young

Home seekers revive old barns for stylish living

Some American home seekers are turning the barn into quite an attruction, said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston.

His firm works with lenders such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

Goss said barn conversions have special appeal for the younger home buyers — particularly those in the 21-36 year-old bracket — who are interested in price flexibility and a chance to do their own renovation work.

"For older barn lovers, the structure is often used as a second home or even as a future retirement retreat," he said.

Goss said that while barn conversions were spotty until 1975, there has been an impressive turnaround in barn restoration. Also, barns which were once popular as dwellings in only a handful of states, are now enjoying universal popularity.

Other "selling points" of old barns for home seekers include:

- Simplicity of design and the opportunity to make maximum use of living space.
- Dramatic appeal of locale — the wide open land surrounding most barns offers unique privacy and recreational potential.
- A chance to keep close to the family stable — to ride on weekends, or evenings after work.
- Interior beauty — most barns have well-aged wood beams, exposed rafters and multi-level sections; barn floors, where threshing was done, are worn smooth and bleached the color of honey.

Additionally, Goss said, barn siding is now a much-sought after building material, making old barns true goldmines for homeowners should they decide to resell.

"With median priced homes in 1976 likely to range in the $41,000-plus area, old barns are sure to offer best buys for young and old households in need of versatile, expandable dwellings," Goss said.

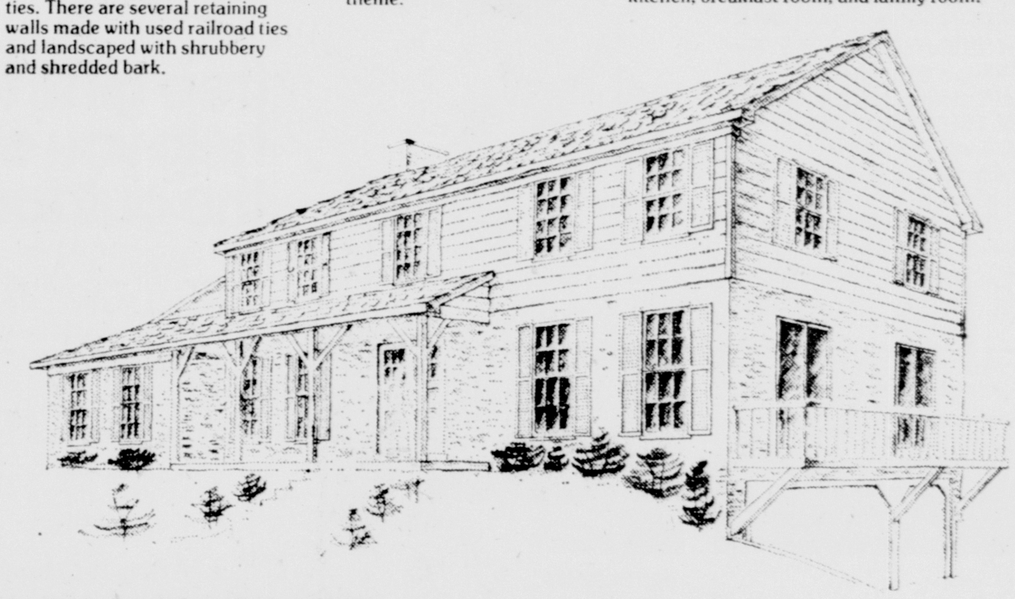
THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. There is a dry creek that meanders diagonally across the property with trees along each side. The home was sited to the side of the creek and to the rear of the trees on the high part of the lot. The walk from the drive to the front door is made with used railroad ties. There are several retaining walls made with used railroad ties and landscaped with shrubbery and shredded bark.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: the living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den, second floor. The foyer floor is a country provincial ceramic tile. The exterior door locks, interior door knobs, switch plates, cabinet handles, and bathroom hardware are the same pattern in order to develop a consistent trim finish theme.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have solid oak panelled doors in distressed walnut. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, ceramic cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3' wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1' high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30' expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room.



Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. To each side of the fireplace are sliding glass doors leading to a large screened-in porch. The screening goes from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters which are 16' high at their highest point.

Idea No. 5—Laundry Room/Powder Room
The laundry is finished uniquely so that it may be considered as part of the foyer, part of the den-guest room, or a hallway to the powder room. If the pocket door between the laundry and foyer is open and the closet doors are closed over the laundry fixtures, it becomes a hallway to the luxurious powder room. If the pocket door is shut, the powder room becomes a private bath for the den-guest room.

Idea no. 6—Den/Guest Room
The den-guest room has a full wall of bookshelves. It has windows to the south and west. It also has sliding glass doors to the porch on the north side. With glass on three sides, the den-guest room is a very light-bright room.

Idea No. 7—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room to a wood deck overlooking a lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walkin closet with 24' of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities with 24k gold plated faucets. The vanity top is raised an extra 4" in height and has a marble cosmetic ledge. There is a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full height mirror completely covering three walls.

Individually Designed One-Of-A-Kind Homes In A Unique Environment

In South Barrington, you will find a secluded community of 1-2 acre homesites on high, rolling terrain overlooking miles of countryside and small private ponds. Some lots are on one of the largest residential lakes in Cook County with four season recreation. The Village of Barrington, shopping, schools, golf courses, indoor tennis, other activites are minutes away.

Barrington Construction Company designs and builds a one-of-a-kind home to fit the individual tastes of each owner. Home types include ranch, hillside ranch, Cape Cod, and 2-story. Home styles include colonial, traditional, Spanish, and rustic contemporary. If you have some dramatic, unusual ideas of your own for a new home, come see us. We'll take the time and effort to design and build a home for your particular lifestyle. Call 381-6288 for an appointment to discuss your plans and visit our Idea Home.

Prices From $105,000-$150,000

In the news

BOB STEFANI, sales associate in Baird & Warner's Mount Prospect office, has been cited by the company's Insurance Division for making the largest number of referrals and policies written in 1975.

Stefani is a lifetime member of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards' Million Dollar Club and has been in Baird & Warner's Million Dollar Club five times in the last six years.

Robert Stefani

Stefani has been a resident of the Des Plaines/Arlington Hts. area for over 23 years and has been active in real estate sales the past eight years. He is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Stefani and his wife, Barbara, live in Arlington Heights with their three children.

Sales representatives of HOLDING O'CONNOR BLAESER REAL ESTATE participated in sales just $2,100 short of $1 million for the week end of March 27-28. All the sales were single family homes in the Northwest suburban area.

Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate has sales offices located in Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights.

CHARLES F. MOSER, sales manager of Baird & Warner's Mount Prospect office, has been named an assistant vice president of the diversified real estate company.

Moser is a licensed broker and joined the company's Arlington Heights sales staff three years ago. He has been cited for outstanding sales production including membership in the $2 Million Club. He attended Loyola University and holds the GRI designation.

Charles Moser

Moser is a member of NIR (National Institute of Realtors) and the Cambridge Club of the Northwest Suburban YMCA. He has been a resident of Arlington Heights over 20 years and prior to entering the real estate field he was part owner and manager of Scot's Restaurant in Mount Prospect.

Moser and his wife, Diane, are the parents of eight children and are members of St. James Catholic Church.

With a record $1,700,000 sales in 1975, CHARLES OSWALD of Palatine has been named "Salesperson of the Year" for the 12 Homefinders Realtors offices in the Northwest suburbs.

Oswald is manager of the Palatine office of Homefinders, and for four consecutive years has been a million dollar salesman for the firm. He is a fifth generation resident of Palatine, being a descendant of John Baldwin, who settled in Palatine in the 1840's.

Charles Oswald

Because he has had three consecutive years of million dollar sales, Oswald is a life member of the Illinois Association of Realtors and is a member of MAP Multiple Listing Service for his four straight years of selling a million dollars of residences annually.

Oswald and his wife, Ann, reside in Palatine. They have 2 children.

QUINLAN AND TYSON'S four Northwest suburban area offices have reported a record-breaking sales total of $6.7 million in February.

The sales effort was a 133 per cent increase over February of 1975. Sales for the first two months of the year are double the comparable total of last year, according to William B. Martin, senior vice president and general manager-residential sales.

The Palatine area office set a new February mark with sales of $2.4 million. The office averaged more than one sale per day.

Faye Gutekanst was named Salesperson of the Month for selling more than $400,000. Other leaders were Grace Sullivan, $315,000; Mary Ann Falkenberg, $321,000; and Mary Jane Kohl, $250,000.

The office total for the first two months of the year is $3.7 million.

Martin said the Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office and the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area office both reported increases of more than 50 per cent over February of 1975.

In the Buffalo Grove area office, the February volume was $1.7 million. The office has been in operation for one year.

FROM CHORUS GIRL to daredevil carnival queen, Kathryn Snellenberger of Des Plaines spent eight of her 80 years in show business, mostly on the carnival circuit where she survived a cyclone, a disastrous fire and a bout with malaria. She married the show's star motordrome rider.

Step right up, folks! Meet La Belle Fatima too," explained Kay. "I was her 'spieler.' I was a pretty good barker, but she gave me no pay — only room and board."

So Kay joined the "girlie" show, the "kootch" dancers. "The other two dancers resented me and ganged up on me, but I beat them up — both at once," said Kay with a satisfied smile on her face.

After several months of playing all the jerkwater towns, Kay's carnival landed in Argenta, Ark. Across the river in Little Rock was the well known showman, J. F. Murphy, and his famous American Shows, a prestigious outfit in carnival circles.

Fate stepped in and crossed the paths of Ernest Snellenberger, fancy trick motordrome rider in the Murphy show, and La Belle Fatima, exotic dancer. Their romance continued at the state fair in Hot Springs. Kay became a dancer in the Murphy show and within four months married her star motorcyclist.

THEIR WEDDING was a showman's dream. In Anadarko, Okla., Murphy imparted a church atmosphere to his "Busy City" set. With dancers, singers, an exotic dancer as maid of honor, an Italian band playing and the entire personnel of the show present plus 15 Indian chiefs in full regalia, Kay became Mrs. Ernest Snellenberger.

Within the next few years, Kay performed in almost every carnival job possible. "I did everything but high dive and working the lions," she said.

When the girlie dancing show was cut out, she became a snake handler and made friends with bull snakes, coachwhips, blue racers and chicken snakes, making sure that all had had their venom removed. "But there was one mammoth rattler I wasn't sure about. That old baby scared me silly," she said.

In the Illusion Show, it was Kay's apparently detached head resting on a velvet drape — the illusion enhanced with strategically placed mirrors, the rest of her body wedged into a trangular-shaped cabinet. One time when she had gained a few pounds, she got stuck in the cabinet.

SHE LEARNED TO sit in the "Electric Chair," sparks flying from her hairpins, lighting an alcohol-soaked wad of cotton with her "charged" tongue. She hobnobbed with the fattest man in the world, and the skinniest, and fretted over the baby with the biggest head in the world right along with the baby's mother.

But her greatest success and the job she enjoyed most was sitting behind Zeke, her husband's partner, on his motorcycle as they zoomed around the motordrome, attaining a speed of 80 miles per hour as they "did the dips" on the perpendicular wall, almost touching the gawking spectators gathered at the guard rail high above them.

Kay rode with both arms outstretched, waving, one foot extended, holding on to the cycle with her other foot. For four years she rode behind Zeke in the motordrome. Never with her husband. He refused.

Kay took six weeks off in Cleveland when baby Frances was born. When she returned to the show, it was love at first sight — the baby with the carnival, the carnival with the baby. The Murphys became her godparents.

THE CARNIVAL was Fran's life and many a surprised spectator did a double-take as the dark-haired toddler walked down the midway with her black teddy bear. But hers was alive and on a leash.

Four years of pre-school show business seeped into the youngster's blood for in later years, coached by her father, Fran became a vaudeville star, taking her singing, dancing and comedy routines into clubs, banquets, theaters, the old Opera Houses.

"We worked all the cafes in Chicago," said Fran who married a band leader and only recently retired from show business. Not long ago she was thoroughly involved with the Des Plaines Theater Guild.

Kay's carnival career lasted eight years. When baby Fran was four and school years approached, the Snellenbergers made an abrupt change and became Indiana farmers, later branching into the chicken business with 1,800 chicks.

Ernie has been gone a long time now. Kay has been a widow for 41 years. Fran and her husband, semi-retired, live quietly in their Des Plaines home, laughing, sometimes crying, with Kay as she relives old times and the thrills and chills of show business.

ON THE BALLYHOO in front of the motordrome, the Mile-a-Minute Girl, Kay Snellenberger, waits her turn to perform as the barker draws in the crowds at J. F. Murphy's famous American shows. Kay rode behind the driver as he "did the dips."

The right of petition: lobbyists have abused it

by Monica Wilch Perin

As viewers of the Adams Chronicles saw on a recent segment of the series, John Quincy Adams, during his years in Congress following his Presidency, fought and won a battle to preserve the Constitutional right of the people to petition their government.

In more recent years that right of petitioning the government has led to something quite different than the simple letters of private citizens with which Adams dealt. It is the basis of the multi-million dollar business of lobbying.

Petitioning the government became known as "lobbying" when businesses and organizations began hiring full-time professionals to maintain vigils in the lobbies of Congress and buttonhole the representatives to vote a certain way on legislation affecting the lobbyists' employers.

EVEN ON such a scale lobbying is a perfectly legitimate and Constitutionally protected activity. But sophistication of technique and the introduction of huge sums of money into the process inevitably led to abuse of the right. Though laws were passed to regulate lobbying, these date back to 1946 and have been sorely antiquated by developments in the last 30 years.

In particular, the events of the last four or five years have spurred renewed interest in reforming the lobby laws. Revelations concerning the Nixon Administration have shown that illegal and unethical influence peddling has been rife.

In addition, the consumer movement has spotlighted the tremendous imbalance of power between consumer interests and the business lobbies in Washington.

A number of reform proposals are currently under consideration in Congress, and some 20 states have enacted new lobbying laws.

SINCE LOBBYING is a constitutional right, it really cannot be "regulated"; instead, the existing law and most reform proposals seek disclosure of lobbying activities. But even simple disclosure, in this case, is not a simple matter.

The first problem is who should register as a lobbyist. A 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decision interpreted the 1946 law to apply only to people who literally "buttonhole" Congressmen, thus excluding congressional staffs and the grassroots lobbying efforts of organizations like the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Rifle Association, which generate floods of mail against consumer and gun control bills.

The law also applies only to persons who are paid for the "principal purpose" of lobbying. This excludes many trade association representatives and Washington lawyers, who are very effective lobbyists but who also perform other functions.

ON THE OTHER hand, some registration proposals, based on the number of contacts a person has with Congressmen, could infringe on private citizens writing to their elected representatives.

Nader lobbyist Alan Morrison believes it is essential for any lobby law to require disclosure of the source of lobby funding. Any individual paid by any type or organization to influence the government, full or part-time, should be required to register, Morrison believes.

The second, more complicated problem is what information should be disclosed.

While lobbyists are theoretically required now to file their lobbying expenditures, compliance has not been enforced. According to Morrison, the American Association of Railroads in 1972 reported lobbying expenditures of less than $5,000 while carrying on a million dollar public relations campaign in support of the Surface Transportation Act.

THE PRESENT law also covers only lobbying of Congress, not lobbying of the executive regulatory agencies, which is where ITT and the milk lobby went during the Nixon Administration, resulting in influence-peddling scandals.

Proposals on what to disclose have included all lobbying expenditures, all congressional and executive agency contacts, and the substance of the discussions during such contacts. It is immediately obvious that the resulting paperwork would literally drown the government, the lobbyists, as well as any citizens (or reporters) who might try to wade through such reports.

Besides that, how do you draw the fine lines between lobbying and non-lobbying activities for expense report purposes, and what difference does it make if a lobbyist took a Congressman out for a $10 lunch or a $15 lunch?

And what lobbyist or Congressman or bureaucrat could or would record every meeting and every conversation, and how vague and meaningless would be their explanations of the "substance" of the discussion?

And finally, Morrison warns, such extensive requirements would place a disastrous burden on financially struggling public interest groups, widening the gap between them and industry lobbyists.

STILL, SOME kind of reform is needed to insure that lobbying is basically in the light of public knowledge and to guard against abuses of the petitioning right.

In California a very stringent lobby law has been enacted, and that state is now struggling with many of the problems mentioned. However, an author of that law says the legislature is now "the most hard-working and sober in memory," and that the legislative system has been "opened up and equalized."

At least one corporate lobbyist also likes the law, saying it gives him "a chance to sit down with (legislators) in their offices and discuss legislation in a businesslike manner. I don't like to lobby in a bar."

Surgery will cure most heart defects

I have an 18-month-old granddaughter who has a heart murmur. At first it was decided she might grow out of it, but if at five years she had not, then they would operate. Now after a second visit and X rays they have decided to operate when she is two years old. She has had no bad effects and is otherwise perfectly healthy.

Is an operation always necessary in these cases? Is it a dangerous operation and will it cure her? Please explain heart murmurs.

Heart murmurs are the audible sounds we hear from the vibration of blood tumbling through the heart. They can be normal because of an active circulation. Or they can occur because of increased turbulence of the blood going through a heart with a diseased heart valve inside the heart or because of an abnormal routing of the circulation from birth defects of the heart.

At birth many babies have heart murmurs because the fetal heart has a hole between the two top chambers of the heart and an open artery shunt between the artery to the body and the artery to the lungs. Both the arterial shunt and the hole between the two upper chambers close at the time of birth or shortly thereafter. This fact, combined with the active circulation of the newborn, means that doctors often wait a while before deciding about the significance of a heart murmur that they hear immediately after birth.

There are a large number of birth defects which can affect the heart. It may be a simple connection between the major artery to the body and the major artery to the lungs, or it can be a persistent hole between the upper chambers of the heart. Other children have a persistent hole between the lower chambers of the heart. These abnormal communications allow blood to be squirted through the hole or shunted back into the right side of the circulation. They cause the heart to be inefficient.

WHEN THERE is a hole between the two lower chambers of the heart (ventricles) and it's small, it does sometimes close spontaneously. Many of the other birth defects will not correct themselves in the course of time.

I would presume from what you've told me that the X ray and physical findings were such on the last examination that the doctors feel fairly certain as to what type of defect your granddaughter has and also feel fairly certain that it is not something that will disappear. Since these are structural defects, a successful operation usually results in a complete cure. This of course is not true in the very complex birth defects of the heart which cause the child to be blue (cyanotic), have delayed growth and are associated with other problems.

In skilled hands at a cardiovascular surgical center most of the common forms of birth defects of the heart can be corrected with a minimal degree of risk. Your surgeon will tell you what the degree of risk is for the type of operation that needs to be done.

Foul smell in drain after she launders

Dear Dorothy: I'm at wits' end about an awful odor coming from the basement drain. I do the wash twice a week and all the sudsy water goes down this drain. When I finish I always run clear water through and even a little bleach to dispel odor. Still, the next time I'm ready to wash I face the same dreadful smell. What might be wrong? — Carolyn Durling

Old soapy water gives off one of the foulest of odors so we can all sympathize. Checked a plumbing expert. He says it's quite likely you do not run enough water through the electric sump pump for all the soapy water to go into the sewer. If yo do run enough water, then he thinks it must have been a faulty installation and says you need to call the plumber for inspection and repair.

Dear Dorothy: For those looking for seasonings on vegetables for family members on low-sodium diets, my advice is to try a little cardamom or caraway seeds in carrots. And spinach can be made with a cream sauce using the water in which it is cooked, then adding nutmeg. For string beans, try a few chopped onions and savory. — Mrs. J. R. Lockart

Dear Dorothy: After seeing your item about buying one of those cheap lightweight freezer chests in which to put frozen foods bought at the grocery, I find it just as valuable to thaw something I intend to use for dinner. — Eunice Rabbe

Dear Dorothy: Do you have to grease the sides of a pan in which you're cooking rice or spaghetti so it won't boil over? — Chris Banks

Just add a dab of butter or oil. It accomplishes the same thing.

Scientists working on needle tip probe to examine body from inside

The fantastic voyage — examination of a patient's body totally from the inside — may become a reality one day. But something called "superprobe," rather than a miniature submarine, would handle the task.

Scientists say they are working on superprobe, the size of a needle tip, which would be inserted into the body to give physicians immediate and continuous information on blood and tissue chemistry.

"The Fantastic Voyage" was a science fiction movie which involved inserting a miniature submarine, with a miniature crew aboard, into a patient's body to repair ailing cells.

SOME 10,000 scientists attending an American Chemical Society five-day meeting in New York were told that superprobe and liquid membranes to lessen pollution will be among tomorrow's medical marvels.

Superprobe is under development at the University of Utah.

The liquid membrane — an emulsion of oil and water globules designed to carry oxygen or withdraw blood poisons — also could be designed to remove metallic wastes from water, lessening pollution.

News of advances around the corner followed a kind of doomsday message from Dr. Linus Pauling, a pioneer in molecular chemistry.

PAULING predicted civilization will end in 25 or 50 years with a catastrophe such as war or a series of them such as famine or plague.

If civilization isn't wiped out, Pauling said, medical developments could add 25 years to each lifetime.

The report on liquid membranes to help in drug overdoses, uremia, respiratory ailments and water pollution was made by a team headed by Dr. Norman Li, inventor of the medical manipulators that operate from the inside out.

He joined Exxon Research and Engineering Co. in 1963 and developed the liquid membrane process. Microdroplets in a liquid membrane emulsion have tiny globules inside that act like magnets, drawing toxins into them.

IN JAPAN, reported Dr. T. Kitagawa of the Takuma Co. in Osaka, liquid membranes are being used in a test to remove metallic waste from water in a factory before it is discharged into the river.

Superprobe was described as a "truly pioneering" effort by Curtis Johnson, chairman of the University of Utah's Department of Bioengineering.

"One of the major problems in medicine is getting current data to doctors and nurses about the patient's blood chemistry," Johnson said. "The lab may draw blood one morning and not get the results back to the physician until the next day."

Big is better with vegetables

Can you picture yourself in the International Gardening Olympics? Can you imagine picking up a check for $1,000 for growing a record tomato — and finding your name in the next edition of Guinness Book of World Records?

How to grow an "Olympic" vegetable is outlined in Grace's Gardens. World's Most Unusual Seed Catalog (25 cents).

One of the basics for growing vegetables of enormous size is a matter of genetics — choosing a variety of seed known to produce gigantic vegetables, such as Russian Mammoth sunflower, Hungarian Mammoth squash, Delicious tomato, Suakurajima radish — and Grace's has them.

Other tricks the big boys use include constant water source because interruption of growth through drought reduces vegetable size. Winners also employ hand pollination to get early fruit set. Another technique is pruning vine crops to all but one vegetable to concentrate energy into producing a single biggie.

MAMMOTH PUMPKIN dwarfs Derek Fell, author of "How to Plant a Vegetable Garden" (Countryside Books). The International Gardening Olympics offers prizes for such giant vegetables.

SEVERAL record-setting gardeners experiment with intravenous feedings of milk, beer or plant food with a wool wick spliced into the stem. Some follow the moon signs.

One tomato grower even played music for his four-pounder.

Something growers of biggies absolutely swear by is the addition of organic matter (compost, manure, seaweed), the very thing this column has stressed for years. (Never mind the music and the beer!) Rich, well-worked soil will win the prizes every time.

For the record, here's how the statistics stack up in the International Gardening Olympics:

BIGGEST CABBAGE: C. Bowcock, Cheshire, England, 56 lb., Drumhead variety; U.S. champ: Mrs. Charles W. Carter, Eaton Rapids, Mich., 35 lbs., Dutch Flat head variety.

Biggest cantaloupe: Ed Weeks, Tarboro, N.C. 36 lbs. 4 ox., North Carolina giant variety.

Longest cucumber: Henry Shamblin, Branson, Mo., 43½ in.

Heaviest gourd: John Ritz, Canton, Ohio, 185 lbs., Nigerian basket gourd.

Largest pumpkin: Bob Fox, Ravenna, Ohio, 207 lbs., Big Max variety.

Any gardener considering giving the Gardening Olympics a shot must document the biggie with photos that include a scale or yardstick to validate weight or size of backyard bonanza. And save the seed, for goodness sake. It could be worth up to 20 cents per seed to you. There is an immediate market for them.

Details on how to qualify for the International Gardening Olympics are outlined in Grace's catalog: Grace's Gardens, Autumn Lane, Hackettstown, N.J. 07840. Mrs. Evelyn Bell, Rte. 2, Box 621, Wescosville, Pa. 18106, is in charge of competition.

4 seasons... 4 reasons to protect your home with MOORGARD®
LOW-LUSTRE LATEX HOUSE PAINT
Year 'round exposure to the elements can damage the appearance and value of your home. Provide extra protection for years to come with a coat of MoorGard Latex House Paint. Suitable for most exterior surfaces, MoorGard brushes freely, dries quickly to a distinctive low-lustre finish, and resists mildew, fumes and alkali. One coat is usually sufficient for most jobs.

A SPRAY of flowers adds fillip to the winning hairdo created by Rita Metallo at the Midwest Beauty Show in Chicago. Model is Judy Valli.

Rita Metallo is winning hair stylist

Rita Metallo, Des Plaines, was judged champion in the Elegant Fashion Competition at the recent Midwest Beauty Show in Chicago. Competing with 32 other contest entrants from all over the country, Rita was awarded $500 for her first place triumph, in addition to a commemorative medallion.

A full-time mother of two girls and a part-time cosmetologist, Rita is married to Remo Metallo, owner of Cameo Hair Designers, Des Plaines.

Rita's model in the competition was Judy Valli, also of Des Plaines.

The competition itself was judged on the total beauty look, including make-up, nails and fashion attire, as well as hairstyling. It was one of three major styling tournaments held at the Midwest Beauty Show, an annual Chicago event attracting nearly 20,000 licensed cosmetologists who come to learn about new salon products and services.

The show is sponsored by the Chicago Cosmetologists Association, a 2,000-member organization of professional hairdressers and salon owners and the largest single affiliate of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Tuesday: Wheeling Senior Citizens Club; Cub Scout Pack 241; Waycinden Area Boys Baseball League; Schaumburg Newcomers Club; CHUMS; Girl Scout Troop 421; Schaumburg PWP; St. Thomas of Villanova.

Reigner-Zonsius

Western Michigan University students Susan Mary Reigner and David Lawrence Zonsius are planning a May wedding. Susan's engagement to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Zonsius, Arlington Heights, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hal M. Reigner, Farmington, Mich.

A graduate of Oakland University, Rochester, Mich., Susan is enrolled in graduate school at Western Michigan where she is working toward her master's in reading education. David, a graduate of Arlington High, will graduate from Western Michigan in '77. He is also employed by Zurn Industries, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Fahn-Hepler

A June wedding is planned by Jacqueline Dee Fahn and Robert Paul Hepler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Hepler of Madison, Wis. The couple's engagement and approaching marriage are announced by Jackie's parents, Barbara Prothero, Rolling Meadows, and Jack Fahn, Prospect Heights.

A '74 graduate of Rolling Meadows High, Jackie earned an associate degree from Harper College in food service management and is employed in Winnetka. Her fiance is employed by Demco and is working on a degee in industrial arts at the University of Wisconsin.

Armstrong-Newgard

The engagement of Kathleen Sloan Armstrong to J. Richard Newgard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Newgard, Mount Prospect, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Armstrong of Evanston. A June wedding is planned by the couple.

Kathleen studied at the University of Wisconsin —Madison, and is now employed by Stepan Chemical Co., Northfield. Her fiance is associated with Henry Newgard & Co., Arlington Heights.

Simple but Creative

Quick desserts using a minimum of ingredients and a small amount of preparation make even an inexperienced cook look like a creative genius.

Perhaps for Easter dessert, there is a refrigerated creation that almost sings of spring. The combination of pink, white and red is as much a feast for the eye as for the palate.

Convenience foods highlight the other recipes, cutting on the time spent in the kitchen on warm spring days. Other favorite fruits may be used in these recipes when in season.

SPICY FRUIT TARTS

- 1 cup non-dairy whipped topping
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon, dash of nutmeg
- 6 individual pastry shells
- Sliced sweetened strawberries

Combine whipped topping, brown sugar and the spices. Spoon into pastry shells and make a depression in center of each. Spoon in strawberries. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

STRAWBERRIES AND POUND CAKE

- 4 slices (about) pound cake, cut into cubes
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 1½ cups sliced sweetened strawberries
- 1 container (4½ ounce) whipped topping
- ½ teaspoon almond extract

Arrange cake cubes in a glass bowl or individual dessert dishes. Sprinkle with orange juice. Spoon strawberries over the cake cubes. Combine whipped topping and almond extract and spread over strawberries. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

BELGIAN WAFFLERS

- 4 waffles
- 1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- ½ teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1 cup whipped topping

Toast waffles, and cool. Place on dessert dishes. Combine strawberries, sugar, orange juice and rind, stirring until sugar dissolves. Spoon onto waffles and top with whipped topping. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

STRAWBERRY CREAM 'N CUSTARD DESSERT

Strawberry Layer

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup cold milk
- 1 cup milk, heated to boiling
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
- 1 pint fresh strawberries (about 2 cups)
- Several drops red food coloring (optional)
- 1 cup ice cubes (about 6 to 8)

In 5-cup blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatin over cold milk; let stand until moistened. Add hot milk and process at low speed 2 minutes. Add sugar, eggs, heavy cream, strawberries, food coloring, and ice cubes one at a time, and process at high speed until ice is melted. Pour into 3-quart glass serving bowl or 2-quart clear glass souffle dish with 3-inch collar. Chill until set, about 30 minutes.

Cream 'n Custard Layer:

- 1 pint fresh strawberries (about 2 cups)
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup cold milk
- ¾ cup milk, heated to boiling
- ½ cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup ice cubes (about 6 to 8)
- 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream whipped

Chop enough strawberries to equal 1 cup; lengthwise halve enough strawberries to equal ½ cup. Reserve remaining strawberries for garnish.

In 5-cup blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatin over cold milk; let stand until moistened. Add hot milk and process at low speed 2 minutes. Add sugar, eggs, vanilla, and ice cubes one at a time, and process at high speed until ice is melted. Pour into large bowl and let stand until slightly thickened about 5 minutes. Fold in whipped cream, then chopped strawberries.

On Strawberry Layer, arrange halved strawberries, cut side out, against side of bowl. Carefully spoon in Cream 'n Custard mixture. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Garnish with remaining strawberries. Makes about 12 servings.

To Prepare with Frozen Strawberries:

In Strawberry Layer, substitute 1 package (16 ounce) frozen whole drypack strawberries, unthawed; omit ice cubes.

In Cream 'n Custard Layer, substitute 1 package (16 ounce) frozen whole drypack strawberries, partially thawed.

Food prices in area supermarkets have stabilized during the past few months, with beef prices dropping significantly.

Canned goods are especially economical because of the large surplus from last year, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture reports. However, not all items are following the trend. Coffee has increased by about 15 cents a pound.

The Nationwide February Consumer Price Index showed an overall retail food price decline of 1.5 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which compiles the index.

THIS TREND IS especially apparent locally in a comparison of prices six months ago with those at five area food chain stores on April 1.

For example, the average price of round steak per pound last October was $1.49. An April 1 the same type cut averaged 40 cents a pound less, ranging from $1.05 to $1.49 in the five stores surveyed.

Ground beef, with 70 per cent lean, averaged 10 cents a pound under a year ago, but was three cents higher than the average six months ago.

The Consumer Price Index indicated that beef prices went down 5.9 per cent at the retail level.

"Current attractive retail beef prices are the result of a shift in the beef supply," said John L. Huston, National Live Stock and Meat Board Beef Program vice president in Chicago.

BECAUSE OF LAST fall's large supply of grain and the low prices farmers received for it, farmers turned to grain-feeding their cattle instead of grass-feeding, he said.

"The build-up (of the numbers of grain-fed beef) started last fall is resulting in easing of retail prices today," said Huston.

However, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, in its monthly Food Marketing Alert, indicated that the prices of lesser quality cuts like hamburger will go up as the grass-fed beef diminishes. In the past, grass-fed beef accounted for most of the cheaper cuts and grain-fed beef made up the higher quality cuts of steaks.

"Consumers are noticing the quantity of grain fed beef increasing," said Huston. "As this continues, retail prices will remain attractive providing the perfect opportunity for beef-loving Americans to stock up."

IN OTHER AREAS of the supermarkets, vegetable oil and sugar showed significant decreases in prices from six months ago — oil also due to the drop in grain prices last fall.

Canned items were especially economical because of a large surplus remaining from last year, according to the USDA. This is attributed to increases in home canning and freezing and a trend by consumers to grow and buy fresh produce, including exotic varieties normally processed commercially.

However, the National Canners Association predicts that because of the heavy surplus, canners will demand a smaller supply from farmers for the 1976 cnnning season, which begins in early summer. This means farmers will plant fewer acres of vegetables and fruits, less produce will be processed commercially and the current surplus will dwindle with resulting higher retail prices later in the year.

Not all prices taken April were stable or lower than before. Coffee, which has risen several times in the past six months because of a crop-killing frost in Brazil, is again going up.

LAST WEEK General Foods Corp., nation's largest coffee wholesaler, and Folger's Coffee Co. announced 15-cent per pound increases. The jump was noted immediately in local stores where stocks for those brands (Folger's and Maxwell House) were low. In one supermarket, a two-pound can of Folger's selling at $3.05 for several months was up to $3.25.

Also last week, the Labor Dept. in Washington, D.C., announced that wholesale prices veered upward 0.2 per cent in March despite a continued decline in farm prices.

The increase in wholesale prices was caused by a resurgence of inflation among industrial and processed food prices that overshadowed the one per cent drop in farm prices. Eventually the increase will be passed along to consumers.

The Herald surveyed prices of several fresh fruits and vegetables April 1. Moving onto the market this month are artichokes and rhubarb, both expected to decrease in price later in the month as the supplies increase.

ASPARAGUS WAS about 25 cents less in price than a month ago and should reach its peak in supply this month resulting in still lower prices.

A supply of sweet corn arrived from Florida and decreased the retail price by about five cents an ear from a survey in mid-March. The average price per ear was 21 cents on April 1.

Cabbage is in its peak supply month and strawberries should drop substantially in price as they near their peak supply in May.

Price comparisons

Following are average prices for several items surveyed April 1 and six months ago. In each case the averages are based on prices obtained from a representative mix of five area food stores.

	April 1976	October 1975
Lean ground beef, per lb.	$ .78	$ .75
Round steak, with bone, per lb.	1.19	1.49
Chicken, whole fryer, per lb.	.54	.63
Pork center cut chops, per lb.	1.70	1.82
Milk, 1 gallon	1.53	1.42
Eggs, 1 dozen, Grade A	.74	.68
Domino Sugar, 5 lbs., granulated	1.24	1.42
Crisco Oil, 38 oz.	1.29	1.46
Folger's Coffee, 2 lbs.	2.96	2.64

Exotic gardens produce blue spuds

FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

The game of one-upmanship is being played in the cabbage patch.

Any home gardener can produce standard varieties. It takes imagination to grow the exotic, such as Japanese gobo, Chinese yard-long beans, or blue potatoes, or to pioneer new vegetables.

In the United States, gobo is known as burdock, a hated prickly weed. Its long, slender, dark roots are delicious deep-fried or cooked in soy sauce. Chinese yard-long beans actually measure one-and-a-half to three feet. The clustered pods make an attractive display when poled.

One variety of blue potato has purplish blue skin and white flesh, another is blue throughout. A South Dakota seedsman recommends the latter for baking, boiling and salads.

"PEOPLE ARE looking for new things to eat," said Madeline Halsey. She and her husband, Raymond, operate the Green Thumb vegetable market in Watermill, N.Y., with produce from their 330-year-old family farm.

"They're more willing to experiment than they used to be, maybe because they've traveled abroad more. Some of our best sellers are Chinese snow peas, round zucchini from France and haricot beans from England."

Size is always an important ploy in upmanship; the smallest is good, but the biggest is best. You can grow miniature beet-shaped carrots for salads, snacks or whole-pack canning; French courgette squash to be harvested when they are the size of a small sausage; or Hungarian mammoth squash that can weigh 100 to 200 pounds at maturity.

Oriental vegetables are increasingly popular. The Armenian yard-long cucumber really does measure three feet. Japanese Sanjiaku Kiuri and Chinese Kyoto giant cucumbers are half that size. New Hampshire midget watermelons were developed from Korean stock.

NEW OR unusual colors in vegetables can raise your garden above the mundane. For example, purple-pod bush beans are so dark some people call them black. They turn dark jade green when cooked. Bean beetles avoid purple beans, a very practical plus.

Lemon cucumbers resemble a lemon in size and color and are sweeter than green varieties.

White eggplant, smaller and rounder than the purple-skinned type, was developed from a Chinese variety.

"We never list anything just because it's offbeat," said Lois A. Stringer, vegetable trial manager at the W. Atlee Burpee Co. headquarters in Warminster, Pa.

"THE VEGETABLE has to have real value to the customer. People tend to be more conservative in vegetable planting than flower planting. But you do get innovations that catch on quickly, such as the golden beet and the purple head cauliflower."

Golden beet roots do not bleed as do red ones. If you think blond beets have more fun, try the new albino, which is truly white. Purple head cauliflower is preferred by many home gardeners for its mild flavor and tenderness.

Garden catalogues often stock offbeat seeds that your local garden center does not. For instance, the asparagus pea. It has foot-high triangular pods that are harvested immature and cooked whole, as are Chinese snow peas and domestic sugar peas. Asparagus peas have a faint artichoke flavor.

Some radishes are for cooking. A number of Oriental varieties that weigh several pounds each are white and mild flavored, perfect for cooking like turnips. Black-skinned French radishes are eaten raw with butter.

RUBY LETTUCE and ruffle-leaved Savoy cabbage are among the older established exotics. Celtuce is the debutante of the lettuce family. Its leafless stalks can be eaten like celery. Rhubarb chard, which cooks like spinach, has bright crimson stalks.

Succulent bamboo shoots for Chinese cookery can be grown from starts set out in late winter. Another Chinese specialty, water chestnuts, will grow in a submerged planter in your garden pool. Chinese mung beans are prized for sprouting, and they can be germinated easily at home.

Jerusalem artichokes, knobby little tubers used in salads and relishes, are as easy to grow as potatoes.

Salsify is another old-fashioned, easily grown vegetable, sometimes called oyster plant because of its delicate oyster flavor.

Cut size to include lasagna

Italian dishes are a great way to indulge yourself. If you are hooked, as many persons are, on pasta and sauces with Italian influences, you may still eat these and hang on to some form of a diet. Just eat smaller portions.

This takes a certain amount of will power, but when watching callories it is either cut down drastically or eliminate some favored foods completely. Lasagna roll-ups offer the option of savoring a classic Italian dish, in smaller portions.

LASAGNA ROLL-UPS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

- 1 can (1 pound 12 ounce) tomatoes, broken up
- 1 can (6 ounce) tomato paste
- 1 tablespoon onion powder
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt, divided
- 2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, divided
- 1 can (6 to 8 ounce) sliced mushrooms
- 1 pound ricotta or cottage cheese
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 12 lasagna noodles, cooked
- 4 ounces mozzarella cheese, sliced

In a large saucepan combine tomatoes, tomato paste, onion powder, sugar, Italian seasoning, ½ teaspoon of the salt, garlic powder and 1/8 teaspoon of the black pepper. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes. (Or, replace with 1 jar (5.5 ounce) marinara sauce.) Add mushrooms; simmer, until sauce is thickened, about 10 minutes longer. Combine ricotta, eggs and remaining 1 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon black pepper. Spoon about ¼ cup ricotta mixture onto one end of each lasagna noodle; rollup, jelly-roll fashion. Place in a 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Pour mushroom sauce over all. Top with mozzarella. Bake in a pre-heated 400-degree oven until hot and cheese melts, 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 6 portions.

Beef Cube Chow Mein

Convert stews for Spring appetites

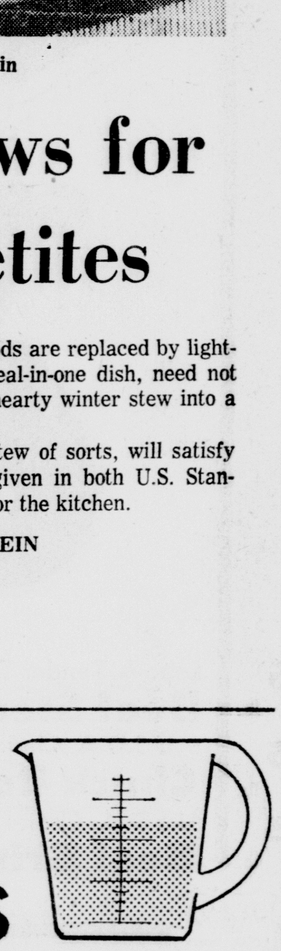
As spring advances, many substantial foods are replaced by lighter fresher fare. Yet stew, a satisfying meal-in-one dish, need not disappear from the table. Simply convert hearty winter stew into a more light-hearted one.

Beef Cube Chow Mein, a Chinese-style stew of sorts, will satisfy springtime appetites. Measurements are given in both U.S. Standard and metrics measurements designed for the kitchen.

BEEF CUBE CHOW MEIN

908 grams or 2 pounds beef stew meat
1 bouillon cube
440 milliliters or 1¾ cups water
80 milliliters or 1/3 cup soy sauce

Cooking with metrics



15 milliliters or 1 tablespoon brown sugar
1¼ milliliters or ¼ teaspoon ginger
500 milliliters or 2 cups sliced celery
1 large onion, cut in eighths
1 120-millimeter (4-ounce) jar sliced mushrooms
1 454-gram (1-pound) can bean sprouts
1 180-milliliter (6-ounce) can water chestnuts
1 120-millimeter (4-ounce) jar pimiento
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons cornstarch

Food prices have somewhat changed the traditional meats that are served as part of special religious holidays or anniversaries.

The Easter table this year may feature spring lamb or ham, but it also may be highlighted by less expensive poultry or casserole dishes.

To ease the cooking burden you may want to select accompaniments or garnishes such as spiced apple rings and whole crab apples which are ready to eat from the jar. Or, you may want to make a molded gelatin salad to add color and a different taste to standbys.

For a change, substitute apple jelly for mint jelly; you'll have a completely new taste combination with your meat dish.

JELLED WALDORF SALAD

1 package unflavored gelatin
2 cups apple juice
1 cup mint jelly
2 cups chopped peeled apples
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup slivered blanched almonds

Soak gelatin in a cup of apple juice, then place over low heat and stir until dissolved. Add mint jelly and stir until it is melted. Remove from heat and stir in remaining apple juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in apples, celery and almonds. Spoon into molds and chill until firm. Unmold and use as garnish for meat platter or salad accompaniment. As a variation use one cup apple jelly instead of mint jelly.

Passover begins soon

Feast honors flight to freedom

The eight-day Passover celebration begins April 15. Starting with the Seder or Passover Feast, it heralds the deliverance of the Jews from their long bondage in Egypt and their exodus to the promised land.

These desserts, which consist of traditional Jewish foods, are a dramatic and delightful closing for Passover Feasts.

FESTIVE POACHED ORANGES

3 tablespoons pareve margarine
¾ cup currant jelly (or clear raspberry jelly)
½ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon potato starch
2 tablespoons cold water

Remove thin outer rind from three of the oranges with vegetable peeler and cut into very thin slivers. Place the rind in small saucepan with water to cover. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Drain, reserving rind. Cut remaining peel and white membrane from all 6 oranges. Place large crepe pan or skillet over flame. Add margarine and jelly and stir gently until melted. Stir in orange juice and reserved, slivered rind. Add oranges and cook, spooning sauce over oranges, for about 5 minutes. Mix together potato starch and water to form a smooth paste. Stir into sauce in crepe pan. Continue to stir over heat until thickened. Continue spooning sauce over oranges until heated through, about 5 minutes longer. Serve warm, covering orange with sauce and slivered rind. Makes 6 servings.

ORANGE PASSOVER CAKE

½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
9 eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar, divided
½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup shredded carrots (2 to 3 medium)
½ cup finely chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped raisins

Sift together cake meal, potato starch, salt and cinnamon. Set aside. In a large bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in ½ cup sugar, continuing to beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside. In a large bowl beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in remaining 1 cup sugar. Add dry ingredients and undiluted orange juice concentrate alternately to beaten egg yolks, mixing only until well blended. Stir in grated orange rind, carrots, walnuts and raisins. Fold egg yolk mixture gently into egg whites until batter is well blended, but do not overmix. Turn into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in 325-degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, until cake is golden brown and springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert pan on cake rack or neck of bottle until cake is completely cool. When cool, loosen cake from pan and turn out onto cake plate. Makes one 10-inch cake.

ORANGE MATZOH PANCAKES

6 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
1½ cups matzoh meal

Beat egg yolks until light and fluffy. Beat in sugar and salt. Beat in orange juice. Stir in matzoh meal. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold in. Using a rounded tablespoon per pancake, spoon batter into a well greased skillet or griddle. Cook until lightly browned, turn and brown on other side. Serve with honey or a sprinkling of Orange Sugar*. Makes about 4 dozen pancakes.

*Orange Sugar

½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind

Mix sugar and orange rind in a small bowl. Let stand about 2 hours before serving.

HOLIDAY COMPOTE

2 packages (12 ounces each) mixed dried fruit
2 cups orange juice
3 grapefruit, sectioned*
6 oranges, sectioned*
1/2 cup slivered almonds

Combine dried fruit and orange juice in a large saucepan. Cover; heat to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Add orange, grapefruit sections and almonds, to dried fruit. Let cool. Spoon into a jar or bowl. Cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Serve chilled. Or reheat and serve warm. Makes 8 cups; 12 servings.

*To section grapefruit and oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane, then cut slice from bottom. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section over bowl to retain juice from fruit.

CARROT AND SWEET POTATO TSIMMES

1 cup pitted prunes
Water
1 pound carrots, cut diagonally in 1-inch pieces
4 medium size sweet potatoes (about 1½ pounds), peeled and cut in ¾-inch slices
2 tablespoons corn starch
2 tablespoons water
1 cup chicken bouillon
¾ cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons melted margarine

Cover prunes with water; let stand ½ hour. Drain. Put carrots, sweet potatoes and prunes in 4-quart pressure cooker. Mix together corn starch and water until smooth. Mix in bouillon, corn syrup, lemon rind and margarine. Pour over vegetables in pressure cooker and stir to coat. Close cover securely. Place pressure regulator on vent pipe and cook 3 minutes. Cool cooker at once. Makes 6 servings.

Let National Savings help you with the dishes

Two patterns of dinnerware—Tropicana stoneware, rust and sunny yellow floral print on white, banded in chocolate, and All Seasons ironstone, butterscotch-toned and styled to reflect America's past, yet up-to-date as today—and each piece goes from oven-to-table, perfect for every dining occasion.

Your first 4-pc. place setting of either of these lovely patterns can be yours free, when you deposit $100 or more in any new or existing National Savings account. Then build your complete service while you build your savings. After receiving your free first place setting, you may purchase one place setting or accessory piece for as little as $3.95 with each additional $25.00 deposit. Place settings include dinner plate, cup, saucer and salad plate. Only one free place setting per family. Stock up your dishes...and your savings...with the help of National Savings!

She depends upon her background to plan a delicious Easter menu

by LOIS SEILER

Marj Brandenburg of Arlington Heights has all the credentials to qualify her as an outstanding cook. A graduate home economist from Northwestern University, she worked in Better Homes and Gardens test kitchen before her marriage, was house and hostess chairman in charge of the kitchen at Southminster Presbyterian Church for several years, and recently edited the church's new cookbook.

ORANGE-GLAZED yeast rolls shaped like Easter bunnies are a specialty of Marj Brandenburg, Arlington Heights. Their sweet flavor goes well with Easter ham dinners or holiday breakfasts.

Marj's Easter menu will feature the traditional baked ham, served with an appealing green rice casserole, a simple vegetable such as green beans with almonds or mushrooms, a molded pineapple salad, brioche and/or orange rolls and a handsome raspberry ribbon pie for dessert.

The casserole is an unusual combination of cooked rice, eggs and milk seasoned with onion, parsley and cheese. It can be baked in the oven along wit the ham, and looks as appetizing as it tastes.

BOTH MARJ'S salad and dessert are featured in the "Southminster Specialties" cookbook. The salad itself is a simple combination of crushed pineapple, bananas, marshmallows and nuts molded in lemon gelatin.

The topping makes the difference. This is a creamy, cooked pineapple mixture with whipped cream folded in. After it's spread over the gelatin, the topping firms up, forming a rich, tart layer. Ideal for buffets or potlucks, it also goes well with turkey or chicken.

The pie is one she tested for Better Homes and Gardens that was judged a contest winner. Attractive in appearance, it consists of a colorful raspberry gelatin mixture and smooth cream cheese mixture assembled in layers in a baked pie shell. The recipe may be simplified by using frozen pastry, if desired. Neither too heavy or rich, the tart flavor of the raspberries adds a refreshing note. Whether served as a bridge or dinner dessert, the pie is always popular with guests.

LONG A family favorite are the delightful rolls which Marj cleverly forms into the shape of bunnies for Easter. Light in texture, the dough itself is flavored with orange juice and peel, and the baked bunnies are frosted with an orange glaze. Because of their sweet taste, they may be served for breakfast or will also go well with the ham dinner.

Family members who will gather around Marj's festive holiday table include husband Ray, their four children, and their son-in-law.

In addition to her culinary interests, Marj substitute teaches home economics for Dist. 25, and is active in Girl Scout work, serving as day camp director for Arlington Heights. She is a church elder and a member of the Women's Fellowship at Southminster.

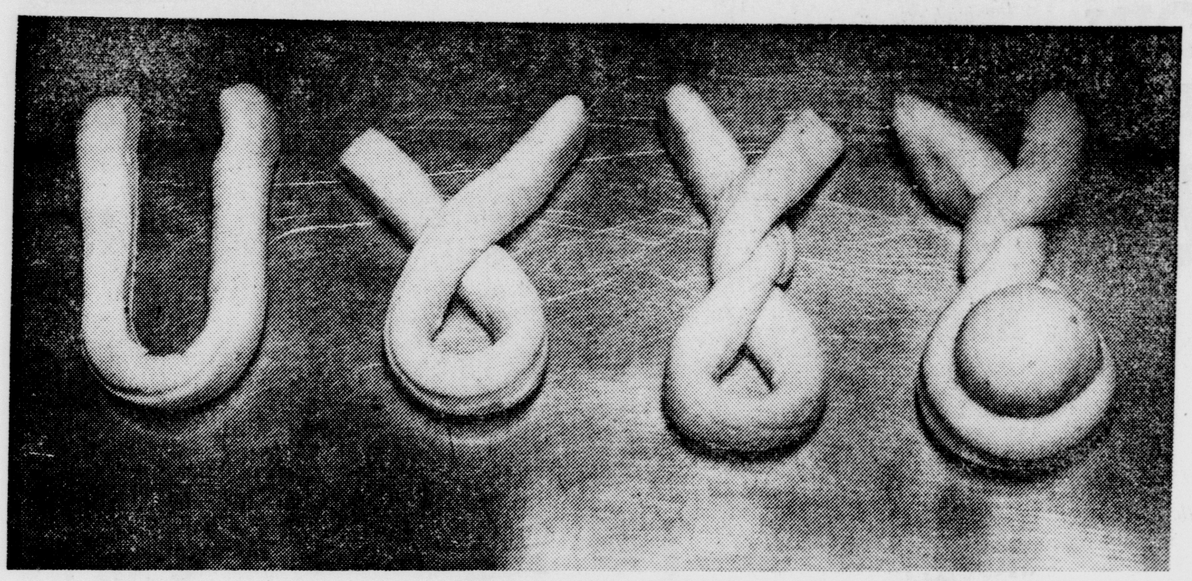
Easter menu based on cook's past jobs



A SIX-INCH STRIP of dough is first formed into a U-shape. The ends are then crossed over and given an extra twist to form the head. A ball of dough is placed in the center of the bottom loop and the ears finished by slightly turning the top strips. This should look like a sitting bunny.

cheese (1 cup grated)
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook rice according to package directions. Drain off any excess moisture. Combine remaining ingredients. (This can be done nicely in a blender without the bother of chopping, etc.) Combine with rice in a two-quart casserole. Place casserole in a pan of hot water and bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes.

PINEAPPLE SALAD

2 packages lemon gelatin (3 ounces each)
3 cups boiling water
1½ cups tiny marshmallows
1 can crushed pineapple (No. 2 size) drained, reserving juice
3 bananas, sliced
½ cup chopped nuts

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Chill until partially set. Fold in marshmallows, pineapple, bananas and nuts. Pour into a 9 by 13 by 2-inch pan and chill until firm. Prepare the following topping:

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup reserved pineapple juice
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup heavy cream whipped

Combine sugar and flour. Slowly stir in pineapple juice and beaten egg. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add butter and cool. Fold in whipped cream. Spread over gelatin and chill until firm. Cut in squares. Serves 18.

RASPBERRY RIBBON PIE

1 package (3 ounces) raspberry gelatin
1¼ cups boiling water
1 package (10 ounces) frozen red raspberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 package cream cheese (3 ounces), softened
1/3 cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash of salt
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add frozen raspberries and lemon juice; stir until berries thaw. Chill until partially set.

Blend cream cheese, sugar, vanilla and salt. Fold in small amount of whipped cream and then fold in remainder.

ORANGE EASTER BUNNY ROLLS

1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
1 cup milk, scalded
½ cup shortening
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 beaten eggs
¼ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
5 cups sifted enriched flour

Soften yeast in warm water. Combine milk, shortening, sugar and salt in large mixing bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Using electric mixer, beat in 2 cups flour, beating well. Add yeast, eggs, orange juice and peel. Mix in 3 more cups flour to make a soft dough, mixing by hand.

On a lightly-floured surface, knead dough 8 to 10 minutes until smooth and elastic. Place in lightly-greased bowl, turning once to grease surface. Cover, let rise in a warm place until double in bulk, about 2 hours. Punch down, cover and let rest ten minutes.

Roll out ¾ of the dough into a rectangle 21 by 6-inches, ½-inch thick. Cut into 30 strips, 6 inches long and ¾-inches wide. Roll each strip lightly between hands.

On greased baking sheet, make a U-shaped loop to form the body of the bunny. Cross the ends of the dough strips over each other, about 1½-inches from the top. Twist the crossed strips at that junction for the head. Turn the ends of the strips up as ears.

Roll the remaining dough into 30 balls and place balls over the center of each bottom loop to make the tails. They should look like the backs of bunnies in sitting position.

Let rise until almost double, about 45 minutes. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, about 12 minutes. Frost with the following orange icing:

1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Combine ingredients and brush on warm rolls with a pastry brush for an even glaze. Makes 30 rolls.

If it's beef, it's basic

One meal stretches into two . . . three . . .

The working woman cooks

by Joyce Zeller

This column is for the woman who has a full-time job, manages a household and is mother to children living at home . . . all at the same time. It's for the working woman who feels that she is drowning in a sea of "shoulds" . . . all those things she should be doing but the pressures of commuting, working, mothering and keeping house are doing her in. This column is for the woman for whom cooking is no longer a job but a lodestone that begins hanging around her neck from two o'clock in the afternoon until she walks in the door at night and is subjected to, "What's for dinner?"

You know what I mean. All those voices demanding "What's for dinner? I have a meeting at seven."

"I gotta karate lesson at 6:30. When are we eatin'?"

"I work tonight and I have to leave in an hour, are we eating soon?"

"I'm hungry now. Do I have to wait for dinner?"

Of course, there's something for you in this column even if you don't have children at home anymore. The recipes are good for two, although if you're just cooking for you and your husband it's a social experience with both of you sharing the fun, right? If not, forget this column and seek out Dr. Joyce Brothers in another newspaper.

The recipes you'll find here all adhere to the Zeller Principles, which are as follows:

• Never cook just one meal at a time. One shot deals are a waste of energy. Cook in two parts at least . . . eat one now and one later in the week, thoroughly disguised so you can't be accused of serving leftovers. You'll see what I mean with the "Basic Beef" recipe at the end of this column.

• In has to be relatively cheap. I assume you are working because you need the money. Most of us are. If you can afford to eat lamb chops and lobster on what they are paying women today, I don't want to hear about it.

• The final preparation has to be simple and fast. We are in no mood to cope with intricate measuring and saucing after a full day on the job.

• It can't be old hat and monotonous. I bore easily and I swear I will go completely berserk if I am subjected to one more recipe for "meatloaf surprise."

• It has to be good for you. Good eating habits have become obsolete. Dinner is the only real chance you have to make sure that what is being eaten is nutritious, so make the most of it.

So here we go, gang. With this system we may even manage to have a week where we cook nothing at all.

This week's offering we'll call "Basic Beef" because that's what it is . . . a recipe that produces a beef and sauce with infinite possibilities. It freezes well and it blends with anything.

This recipe is for three or more dinners, depending on whom you are feeding. I'm feeding a husband and two teenage boys and I get at least four meals out of it, so cook accordingly. Plan to prepare this on a weekend. The taste is special enough for Sunday dinner and it takes a few hours to cook.

BASIC BEEF

5½ to 6 pounds of beef chuck cut into chunks (or less, but use the same amounts of everything else)
4 cups chopped onions
1 can beef consomme
2 beef boullion cubes
1 12 ounce can of beer (I insist on this ingredient . . . trust me)
2 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon garlic (or 4 cloves fresh, sliced)
2 tablespoons brown sugar

Put ½-inch of oil in bottom of 4 quart Dutch oven. Saute onions until limp. Remove. Flour beef chunks lightly, brown in oil. Add onions and everything else. Also, add one soup can of water. Stir and cook covered in a slow oven, about 250 degrees, for four hours. Uncover last hour. Remove enough for a pot roast dinner.

Portion out the rest with the juices when cooled and put into those plastic zip bags. Freeze what you won't eat in 5 days.

Now then, the other portions are served thusly:

• Thicken gravy and have hot beef sandwiches on Kaiser rolls;

• Use without gravy but add 1 cup sour cream for beef stroganoff. Serve with noodles;

• Use without gravy, add one small can tomato sauce and ½ cup chili sauce and serve over rice.

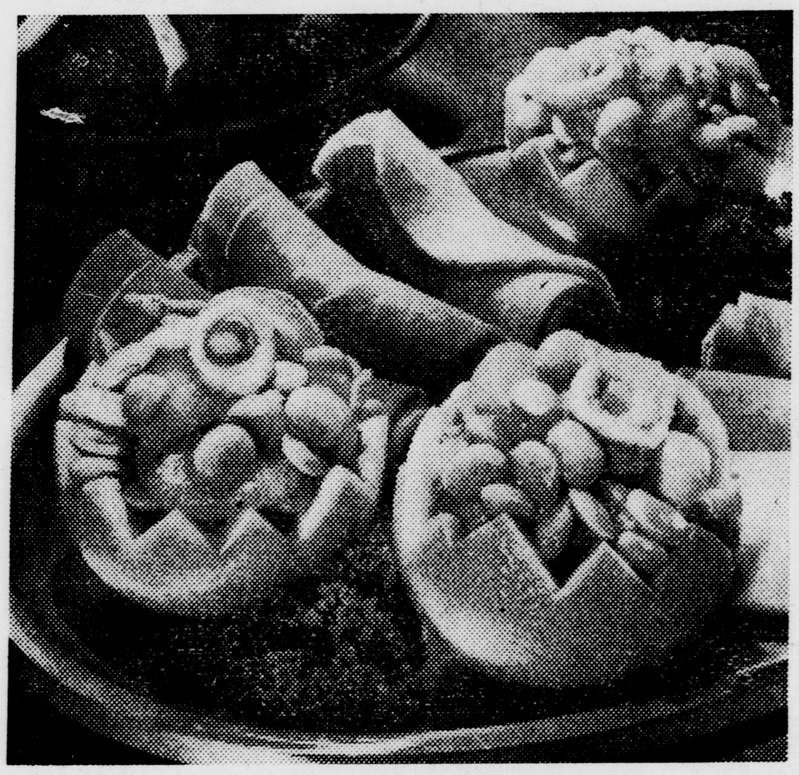
Unusual recipe perks up meals

Everyone is looking for something different — in food as well as in other facets of life. The food problem can be answered. Just dress up your vegetables.

Frozen vegetables kept in ready supply in the freezer help turn a reluctant or casual cook into a wonder among friends. An example is baby limas in ginger orange sauce. The recipe takes a short time to prepare.

If you plan to make it for a party or a very special guest, practice first . . . a good thing to do whenever trying out new recipes on family or friends. Serve the baby limas in a real party dress in scooped out orange shells, with ham, pork or turkey.



Baby Limas in Ginger Orange Sauce

BABY LIMAS IN GINGER ORANGE SAUCE

1 cup fresh or canned orange sections, drained, reserving liquid; or 1 (11-ounce) can mandarin oranges, drained reserving liquid orange juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 (10-ounce) package frozen baby lima beans
½ cup toasted canned onion rings
Bacon bits (optional)

Drain orange sections or mandarin oranges, reserving liquid. Add enough orange juice to drained liquid to measure 1 cup. Combine 2 tablespoons of the liquid with cornstarch, sugar and ginger. Mix until well blended. Combine with remaining orange liquid in a saucepan. Cook over medium high heat until thickened and clear, stirring constantly. Add limas and simmer for 8 minutes or until tender. Add orange sections. Stir in toasted onion rings. Serve garnished with bacon bits if desired. For a party, serve in scooped out orange shells. Goes well with baked ham, roast turkey or pork.

Makes 4 servings.

SAVE WITH WAREHOUSE MEAT PRICES, EVERYTIME YOU SHOP!

No matter which day you shop, you'll save with warehouse meat prices on your family's favorite meats — beef, poultry, pork, and even pre-packaged convenience meats. That's right! So, now, instead of planning your menus around the few meat specials in weekly food ads, you can count on total meat savings — every shopping day — at the Budget Food Store!

Our warehouse meat prices assure you of the lowest possible prices. Just check the items and prices below, for example. Then, remember — these are not "good-only-for-a-few-days" specials . . . these are our everyday prices! Shop and compare our warehouse meat prices for yourself. They are the lowest possible prices, based on current market conditions, you'll find anywhere — and you'll find them only at the Budget Food Store!
